UNION RAILROAD STATION AND PARK PROPOSED FOR THE CITY'S DEPOT UNITS

Combination of Union and Southern Pacific Interests Would Give Opportunity for Beautification of Immediate District

TRANSPORTATION COMMITTEE MEETS SOON

Question of Improvement to Come up at Meeting of Southern Pacific Officials With Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce

Chamber of commerce officials say the most important matter before the association right now is the coming conference of members of the transportation committee with officials of the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific railroads, which will take place as soon as the railroad officers in authority can all be gotten together at dinner where the matters at issue can be taken up.

One of the important items will be the location of the Glendale station on the Southern Pacific railroad. A state law forbids its location nearer than 300 feet from a railroad crossing which would forbid its transfer to the Brand boulevard crossing. But a plan has been suggested for the acquirement by the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific of land adjoining the Southern Pacific right of way on the north sufficient to make a small park which would abut on the rights of way of both roads and stations for the two linked together. The Brand crossing is the gateway to the city and the beautifying of that entrance could not fail to make a favorable impression on travelers, whether they come by trolley, steam train or auto. A union station in which the Union Pacific could join has been mentioned as a possibility.

This plan is said to have received some favorable consideration by officials of both lines. Another proposition put forth has been to transfer the present Pacific Electric station to the west end of Broadway, where it could be linked up with a station on the Southern Pacific. The Southern Pacific has considerable land at that point which could likewise be parked.

CITY SUES FIRM TO PROTECT WATER SUPPLY

Allege Gordon & Harrison, Contractors, Do Damage

The city of Glendale and the Verdugo Canyon Water company have jointly filed suit against the firm of Gordon & Harrison, sand and gravel contractors, who are now operating in the Verdugo canyon, to restrain them from operating in such a manner as to pollute the Glendale water supply, and from taking water from the underground flow of Verdugo canyon.

It appears that some time ago this firm sank a well on the property on which it is operating, its idea being to secure water with which to wash the sand it is selling. This, claims the city, the firm has no right to do as, it is claimed, this procedure endangers the Glendale water supply.

Furthermore, the city claims that after the water has been used to wash the sand the dirty water is permitted to run back into the city's water supply at a point below the company's plant. It is claimed, also, that in some instances this polluted water has run into the large Glendale reservoir in Verdugo canyon and that more than once the city has been compelled to let large quantities of water from the reservoir so that all of the water in the reservoir might not be made unfit for use.

The Glendale city officials are extremely watchful of the supply of water for the city, and they are doing everything in their power to keep it as free from contamination as possible.

The suit was filed Saturday. The city of Glendale is being represented by City Attorney Hartley Shaw, and the Verdugo Canyon Water company, which is filing the suit jointly with the city, has Attorney W. E. Evans as its representative.

FREE TICKETS TO GLENDALE FOR SMALL ADS

Classified to Yield Immediate Returns at Glendale Press Office

Who wants a free theatre ticket? It is ready and waiting for you to claim it. The Glendale Daily Press is offering to give a ticket to the Glendale theatre, entirely free, with each three-time, paid-in-advance, classified advertisement. All you have to do, say the classified advertising ladies, is to bring in the three-time ad, pay for its insertion three times, and the ticket will be slipped across the counter to you.

There are no strings to this offer. You get everything you pay for—and mighty big advertising value, at that—and, in addition, you secure a free trip to movieland. Just as easy as rolling off a log, as they say. Some folks would term this transaction "pretty soft"—and it is, too.

This offer is being made by the Glendale Daily Press to acquaint its 18,000 readers with the pulling power of its classified advertising.

Now, don't all come at once. Take your time. Join the line at the rear, please. This is a big offer and hundreds of Press readers will doubtless take advantage of it.

WILSON - BRAND BUILDING TO BE RUSHED

Endicott & Larson Announce Plans for Fine Structure

According to James A. Endicott of Endicott & Larson, excavation work will soon start for the building which John W. Larson is to erect at the southwest corner of Brand and Wilson avenues. It will be, he says, the finest store and office building in this city, with a frontage of 50 feet on Brand and a depth of 140 feet on Wilson. Brick and reinforced concrete will be used and the plans, prepared by Architect Alfred W. Priest, show that it will be most attractive. It will be four stories high and will, of course, be equipped with elevators.

The owners of the lot just south on Brand, H. S. Webb and Messrs. E. U. and Owen Emery, have joined in the party wall, but have not yet decided upon the character of the building with which they expect to improve it at some time in the future. When asked if it would be a dry goods store, Mr. Webb declined to commit himself, saying the plans were too vague to make any statement at this time.

POSTAL FOLKS HOLD RECEPTION

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson and his staff are well pleased with the interest and appreciation displayed by Glendale citizens who visited the office Saturday afternoon in response to invitation, and were conducted through the various departments.

The reception committee was composed of Postmaster Jackson, Assistant Postmaster George Hallett, Mrs. H. B. Ellis, Miss Irene Rich, W. S. Gamble, F. D. Walker and G. H. Willock.

The amount of mail handled by the office, and its equipment, were a surprise to most of the visitors.

About 50 members of the staff were away on a half-holiday, but the work was so efficiently handled by those who were left that there was no curtailment of the customary service.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Notice of an appeal from the decision of the United States circuit court of the injunction obtained by the Pennsylvania railroad, restraining the railroad labor board from making public its rulings, was filed today.

Society Not Rotten At the Core Asserts Henry James Tonight

There are foolish marriages, many divorces, homes in which the rule of love is not a controlling influence, where faithfulness does not abide, parents incapable of the wise guidance of children—there are all these things, says Henry James in his comment on the day's news, but he does not agree with the report of a sectarian commission which said "Society is rotten at the core in America insofar as domestic life is concerned." Mr. James says that the sectarian, being human, is prone to err, that he is annoyed that society does not endorse his peculiar, and, to himself, logical and satisfactory tenents.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" says that he believes that the name of Columbus should be included in the list of the great men of the world, because Columbus discovered a new world and sailed on when sailing on might mean destruction, and gave to the world a new thinking and new freedom out of which has grown democracy and happiness.

The above, together with all the usual features of the editorial page of this paper, as well as an article which states that water in excess is an intoxicant, will be found of particular interest this evening. We recommend that you turn to the editorial page tonight and enjoy its many good things.

AGED MONTROSE CITIZEN HELD UP AND ROBBED

Thugs Beat Up 70-Year-Old Man Near Car Line

Francis Verdugo, 70 years of age, who, for quite a number of years, has been a resident of the Verdugo Woodlands section, was held up, beaten and robbed while he was making his way from the Montrose car line to his home last night. The thugs received $4 in cash, a valuable pin and a ring. At last reports Mr. Verdugo, who was badly injured by his assailants, was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Early yesterday morning, Mr. Verdugo left his home for Los Angeles, where he went to spend the day with friends. When he left home he had $100 in his possession, but during the day he loaned almost all of it to a friend.

When Mr. Verdugo alighted from the Montrose car about 9 o'clock last night, two other men were seen to get off. Just as soon as the car had pulled away, the two thugs attacked Mr. Verdugo, choking him into submission. They went through his pockets and took his money after which they found his pin and tore the ring from his finger. Wneh they left the aged man he was in a serious condition. He finally recovered sufficiently to make his way to his home when a report of the hold-up was telephoned to the Glendale police department. Officers were dispatched at once to the scene of the crime but the hold-up men could not be found. The police are still working on the case.

HOTEL AGREEMENT REACHES ESCROW STAGE

Progress Up to Consummation of Plans Is Reached

t is expected that the sketches, papers, contracts and other articles of agreement with regard to the Glendale hotel at the corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway, will be placed in escrow today or tomorrow. The architects and attorneys are working hard to get everything ready for escrow today, but it may be tomorrow before everything is completed.

The surveyors are about through with their work, and it is expected that the concrete workers will be on the job bright and early next Monday morning, so that everything can be in readiness for the installation of the steel when it arrives. The building will be rushed to completion.

COOLIDGE TO BE AT BAR MEETING

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Definite assurances that Vice-President Calvin Coolidge will come to San Francisco next month for the national convention of the American Bar association, and will tour the coast at the close of the convention, were received here today.

OUR PLATFORM

The Glendale Daily Press, strongly advocating the reduction of armaments, the prevention of war and the maintenance of peace between the nations of the earth, heartily supports the candidacy of Charles C. Moore for the Republican nomination for United States senator. Perhaps there is no community in all California that has given as many proofs of devotion as has Glendale to the cause of which the four-power treaty is the fine embodiment. Sentiment here overwhelmingly favors the nomination of a Republican who will stand by the party and support its president in the course of action upon which president and party together have entered.

Through his countless unselfish public services, Charles C. Moore has won the confidence and esteem of the people of California without regard to their political affiliations.

As president of San Francisco's great international exposition and head of the state council of defense during the war, he displayed extraordinary ability and real devotion to the public welfare. The people of California know the man. Never seeking preferment or reward, he has been rightly called the most useful citizen of the state.

Mr. Moore's support of every movement that makes for the prevention of war between the nations of the world, especially commends him to the favor of the Republicans of California. Through the negotiation of the four-power treaty for the reduction of armament, the United States and the Republican party stand proudly committed to the cause of peace. It is essential that California should be represented in the senate by a senator who is loyal to the principles the president and the party have declared.

Charles C. Moore is for the four-power treaty just as he was for the League of Nations. If nominated and elected United States senator, he will stand by the party and the president in every effort to make the four-power treaty effective.

The president has earned the right to ask the Republicans of California to send a senator to Washington who will help, not hamper him.

The Republican party itself looks confidently to the Republicans of California to send a senator to Washington who will aid, not thwart, it in its efforts to bring a lasting peace upon the troubled world and make war difficult if not impossible.

The Republicans of California have been conspicuous among the Republicans of the nation for their devotion and noble ideals and high principles. A very great majority of the men and women who compose the party earnestly favor the treaty for the reduction of armament and the creation of conditions safeguarding the peace of the world.

C. C. Moore's candidacy for the United States senate offers them their first and only opportunity to vote their convictions.

FIVE DEAD, FOUR DYING IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Toll of Death in Car-Trolly Collision in Bay City

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Five dead and four others in a hospital with physicians today still uncertain as to their recovery, was the toll of an automobile wreck on Railroad avenue here late yesterday.

The dead were Thomas and Mary Lynch, their daughter, Mary, aged 5, Mrs. Bridget Lynch, sister-in-law of Thomas Lynch, and Philip Lynch, her son, aged 2.

Those injured were Katherine Lynch, aged 5, twin sister of Mary; Lackie Lynch, aged 2, brother of Philip; Mary Lynch, aged 4, daughter of Mrs. Bridget Lynch, and Miss Katherine Garvin, aged 40, sister of Mrs. Mary Lynch.

The accident occurred when Thomas Lynch, who was driving a heavy car, carrying nine persons, swung on to the car tracks to pass through congested traffic. His machine struck a street car, overturned and burst into flames.

Four of the dead had been burned to death before the fire was extinguished. One other died soon after reaching a hospital.

GLENDALE GIRL CAUGHT IN TIDE IS SAVED

Miss Alma Anderson Is Brought Ashore by Life Guard

Miss Alma Anderson of 423 West Oak street, was one of several who were caught in the rip-tide off Alamitos street at Long Beach on Sunday. She had to be brought ashore by Lifeguard Edward West. Miss Anderson did not suffer seriously from her experience and was able to go home last night.

There were several other bathers caught in the rip-tide, one of whom it was necessary to take to the hospital for treatment.

CREDIT MEN WILL ASK NEIGHBORS TO PICNIC

They Want to Be Friends With Outside Store Keepers

The Glendale Credit association decided at its meeting at noon today to extend a cordial invitation to all the people of Burbank, Eagle Rock, Tujunga, La Canada, La Crescenta, Montrose and all other nearby communities to attend the picnic that will be given by the Glendale Credit association in Glendale's new municipal park in Verdugo canyon, on August 16. The idea of the association in extending these invitations is to show the people of the outlying districts that the merchants of this city want to be friends with those of the other towns and cities in this section, just as they are among themselves.

Reports of the various committees on this picnic were given and everything points to one of the greatest get-together gatherings ever held in Glendale. There will be all kinds of concessions and dancing, games and races—everything that goes to make up a real time. The city is making extensive improvement of this park in preparation for the event.

It was also decided at this meeting to invite all of the clubs and civic organizations and churches of Glendale to participate in this event.

At the meeting held today there was a "full house," fifty members of the organization being present. Seven new members were given the glad hand.

The matter of a revision of the billboard ordinance in Glendale was brought up by a representative of a Los Angeles billboard company. Some discussion was given to this subject and Dr. Roy V. Hogue stated that he was emphaticaly opposed to "starting anything" with the city council regarding this ordinance.

"Billboards may be all right in their places," said Dr. Hogue, "but we don't want our streets cluttered up with those unsightly features. We have an attractive city and I am in favor of keeping it so." This was referred to the executive committee.

It was announced that the losers in the recent membership contest would give the winners the promised banquet on the evening of August 9, on which an interesting program will be rendered.

Juanita Miller Turns to Courts From Her 'Lily Love'

OAKLAND, July 24.—Juanita Miller, daughter of the late Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierras," turned from the mystic to the courts today to rid her of her "lily love."

She filed suit in the superior court here charging her husband, Juan Miller, whose name before he married Juanita, was John Smith, with desertion.

The suit was filed by lawyers while Juanita tried to forget her blighted romance as she plucked weeds from among the flowers in her symbolic gardens which represent the cycle of her life.

Juan and Juanita were married more than a year ago at an out of door wedding, according to almost barbaric rites, which attracted wide attention.

SIX INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT AT TUJUNGA

Touring Car Goes Over Embankment With Glendale Folks

A large touring car, carrying six passengers, fell over an embankment near Tujunga on Sunday afternoon, all occupants being injured. They were taken to the Emergency hospital at Tujunga, but as all the doctors were away on a hike, they could receive no aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Cordoray, of Glendale, happened to drive past the hospital, and were stopped by these people, asking for aid. They picked up several of the party, and the others were taken care of by another passing automobile, and all were brought to the Glendale Research hospital, where it was found that Mrs. Jean Bradbury had a fractured arm; Eugene Wilson, arteries on both arms cut and severe bruises; Miss R. Bradbury and Miss Lenora W. Smith received abrasions, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, cuts and bruises.

KU KLUX KLAN HEAD LEADS IN TEXAS PRIMARY

Earl Mayfield Shows Big Majority for U. S. Senate

DALLAS, Tex., July 24.—Earl B. Mayfield, champion of the Ku Klux Klan, was leading in the democratic race for nomination for United States senator in returns from Saturday's primary by 25,000.

Returns from 234 of 250 counties gave Mayfields 93,557; James E. Ferguson 68,196, and Charles A. Culberson 59,743. The latter two are anti-klan candidates. The anti-klan vote was split among four candidates. The vote tabulated today gave Cullen P. Thomas 51,146, and Charles F. Ousley 35 338. Both are anti-klan.

The final nomination will be made at a run-off primary on August 26.

THREE AUTOS COME TOGETHER

Three automobile accidents, although not on the schedule, occurred to mar the peace and quiet of Glendale, yesterday. Although each of them created quite a flurry in its immediate vicinity, there was really not very much damage done.

John A. Donley of Los Angeles was driving a machine that coupled up with a car being operated by a person whose name could not be learned, the accident taking place at the corner of Brand and Broadway at 8 p. m. last night. Both cars were slightly bent, but that's all.

Automobiles driven by William Ford, 7601 North Sherman way, Van Nuys, and Fred Carr of Los Angeles, came together at the corner of Mira Loma and San Fernando road. Ford stopped his Ford without giving the proper signal, and the car belonging to Carr kept right on going. No one was hurt.

An automobile belonging to Leroy A. Perkins and a car operated by Jack Vanderlip of Los Angeles, collided at the corner of Wilson and Glendale avenues at 5 o'clock Saturday evening. Little damage was done and no one was hurt.

THE WEATHER

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair weather with moderate temperature tonight and Tuesday. Probably fog or clouds in the morning.

Southern California: Tonight and Tuesday fair, except cloudy near coast tonight and in morning.

GLENDALE NIGHT ON PRESS-NEWTON, RADIO STATION IS SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

Only Local Artists to Be Heard During the Entire Concert, the Fourth Program to Be Given With One City's Talent

COMMUNITY IDEA MAKES A HIT WITH FANS

Well-known Glendalians Are to Be Heard on Instrument Which Is Advertising the Musical Atmosphere of This Section

Tonight will mark the fourth evening in which the program furnished is from talent who are all residents of one city. Last Monday was "Burbank night," the Monday before was "Eagle Rock night," tonight is "Glendale night." This method of handling Monday evening programs is proving very popular and many requests have been received, urging the continuance of these programs.

Practically all of the artists playing on this evening's program are well known to Glendalians and have appeared on Press-Newton programs before.

Wilbur H. Funk, who resides and teaches saxophone lessons at 111 East Harvard, is to again entertain, which will fulfill the many demands for his return.

Glenn R. Dolberg, baritone, will also be greeted by the many who heard him two weeks ago via radio KFAC.

A. M. Kelly, violinist, is the conductor of the Shrine Club orchestra, which has been playing every Saturday night for this station.

Edward Monoit and Miss Marion Jones have both favored the many lovers of popular music with selections and tonight will once more entertain with two very popular selections, namely, "By the Sapphire Seas" and "St. Louis Blues."

The detailed program will be found on another page.

CITY EMPLOYES ORDERED TO STOP SPEED

Complaints Reecived by City Manager, Receive Attention

Glendale city employes must stop their speeding.

Complaints have been received by the "higher-ups" of the city administration to the effect that a number of the city employes make a habit of burning the roads. This procedure, claim the protestants, not only ignites the oiled roads, but also makes the highway unsafe. In order the eliminate any further need of complaint, City Manager Reeves has issued an order to the police department to "pick up" any speeding city employe.

"The city employe has no more right to speed than has anyone else," said Mr. Reeves this morning. "On the contrary, he should endeavor to set an example to other motorists by complying strictly with the speed limit laws."

STRIKE COMMITTEE ACCUSE OFFICIALS

NEW YORK, July 24.—A "die hard" group of eastern rail executives wants the shopmen's strike to go on, in a vain effort to install the open shop, a statement issued by the central strike committee here today charged.

"We expect drastic action from the government today or tomorrow," the statement said. "We expect priority orders first and then a pooling of rolling stock to relieve the acute car shortage already developed."

PATTERSON AVE. OPENING TO BE DISCUSSED

Meeting Is Called at Columbus School for Residents

The proposed opening of Patterson avenue will be discussed at an important meeting of all residents of Doran street, west of Brand boulevard, on Tuesday evening, July 25 at 8 o'clock, at the Columbus Avenue school. They will take any action which may seem advisable.

If you cannot be present, you should arrange to have someone represent you. Your property is in the assessment district and any action taken must be done before July 30.

MERCHANTS' TEAM DEFEATS ALL VISITORS

Cleans Up on Drug Clerks and Rube Ellis' Outfit

The Merchants base ball team hung it on a couple of ambitious outside teams, Saturday and Sunday. Both of the visiting teams did the best they could, but they could not quite "turn the trick."

On Saturday the home team defeated the Western Drug company's team by a score of 13 to 6. Hyler was in the box for the local boys with King at the receiving end.

Yesterday the Glendale lads trimmed the Rube Ellis team to the tune of 3 to 2. Glendale's runs were made by Buck (2) and Wilson. Aggeson and King were Glendale's battery.

TEXAS PRIMARY

DALLAS, Tex., July 24.—Returns from Saturday's Texas democratic primary, tabulated at 11 o'clock today, and including 247 of the 250 counties in the state, 20 of them complete, give: For United States senator—Mayfield, 100,785; Ferguson, 74,523; Culberson, 68,947; Ousley, 36,681; Henry, 25,734.

WHERE TO REGISTER FOR THE PRIMARY BEFORE JULY 29

The list of registrars who are awaiting your visit in Glendale follows, with their addresses. They are available day and night:

L. W. Ball, deputy registrar, 363 West Elk street.
Spencer Robinson, 1234 East Windsor.
Mrs. Grace Holman, 533 West California.
Mrs. Sara Ryan, 332 West Acacia.
Mrs. Gertrude Tisdale, 336 West Acacia.
Alexander McDougal, 553 West Colorado.
Mrs. Opal Greenwald, 408 West Oak street.

Registration closes July 29. To make it convenient, William D. Root will be at the Glendale Daily Press office every day, all day long, to enroll your name. He will never be "just out" during the entire day. You may phone and he will wait for you after hours.

If you have registered as independent or non-partisan and realize you cannot vote at the primary on that basis you can change your designation and re-enter your party—help select your candidates.

GLENDALE NEEDS A BIG PARTY ENROLLMENT THIS YEAR.

See Mr. Root—phone him at the Glendale Daily Press—he'll wait for you.

Only Five Days More to Register for the Primaries

MUTILATION OF THE BIBLE IS OPPOSED

Rev. Preston Tells Need for Retention of the Original Work

"An Abridged Bible" was the topic of the Rev. Harley G. Preston, at the Pacific avenue Methodist church yesterday. He said in part:

"'Now the king was sitting in the winter house in the ninth month; and there was a fire in the brazier burning before him. And it came to pass, when Jehudi had read three or four leaves, that the king cut it with the pen knife and cast it into the fire—until all the roll was consumed.' Jer. 36:22-23.

"But why should they want to mutilate the Bible? Why this persistent hostility to the best of books? I can imagine only three reasons for it.

"First they say the Bible is not needed. 'The religion of nature is enough.' But nature speaks a various tongue. Not even theologians are agreed that she teaches so much as the mere being of God.

"The second reason given for mutilating scripture is that portions of it are incomprehensible.

"This is true. But what sort of a divine book would that be which had no shores beyond the reach of mortal exploration? If mysteries are to be eliminated we shall find ourselves in a hopeless quandary, for we are encompassed about by mysterious facts which we can neither explain or deny.

"Tell me how my fingernails grow, if you can; nevertheless, here they are. Shall we balk at miracles in a book whose author claims to be the greatest miracle of all?

"'Canst thou by searching find Him out?'

"The third reason given for destructive criticism is that the Bible is not true.

"Wherein is it not true? Well, to begin with, they say its scientific statements are at odds with the developments of these last days. For example, 'In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.' In view of the evolution hypothesis, that, they insist, must be given up. Very well; call in your evolutionists and assemble the facts.

"We are living in a world of matter, 8000 miles in diameter. Suppose they show us that evolution can produce one grain of sand. Or, in a world where air and water and the soil beneath our feet are teeming with life, let them originate one bioplasmic cell, or reanimate a dead fly. Is that asking too much?

"They say, the historical Books are disproven. At this point we are open to conviction; but, so far there is nothing to show for it. Time after time the charge of inaccuracy has been made against this or that statement of the inspired annalists, only to be invariably refuted by the unearthing of contemporary records.

"There is a man with a spade, digging among the monuments, who must be disposed of before the man with the penknife can have his way.

"But the prophecies, they say, are untrustworthy. Are they so? There are voices from the ruined palaces of a hundred empires that must needs be hushed before we can allow it.

"Call off the archaeologists before you can cut out any of the prophecies.

"Let us turn now to the positive side of the argument for 'maintaining and defending' the Bible as it is.

"First, because it is all true. By this we do not mean to say that there are no discrepancies in current versions. The Bible is printed in more than 500 languages and dialects; and naturally there are diversities of expression among them. But what we do claim is that the original autograph, 'written by holy men as they were moved by the spirit of God,' must have been 'without spot or blemish or any such thing.' If inspiration means anything it means that the holy men through whom God breathed was so protected against error that the writing on the original parchment was faultlessly true.

"'But how are we interested in a manuscript that we never saw?' The objection goes too far, for it holds equally against Christ as the incarnate word; who lived on earth only 30 years and then disappeared, leaving no accurate portrait behind Him; nevertheless it was an unspeakable comfort to know that He was the blameless Son of God.

"The discrepancies in current versions are invariably so unimportant in their bearing on the integrity of the book as 'an infallible rule or faith and practice,' that an open-minded reader is bound to reach two conclusions; on the one hand, that they must have occurred in the process of transcription, and on the other hand that a special Providence must have preserved the original and passed it along the centuries so unimpared as to be an absolutely trustworthy guide in all things pertaining to truth and the conduct of life.

"In the second place, we hold to the entire Book because it is all helpful; as it is written: 'All Scripture, given by inspiration, is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished unto every good work.'

"Not that all parts are equally profitable, or in the same way; for example: John 3:16 is a vastly more important verse than Deut. 22:6.

"Ingersoll used to say in one of his infidel lectures that there were portions of the Bible which could not be read aloud in any company.

"This, thank God, is true. The Book as a Book was not intended for public reading; for the reason it touches life at every point in its circumference.

"It is a two-edged sword that pierces between the very soul and spirit; it lays a ruthless hand on the secret imaginations of the heart. There are portions of it that can be read only in solitary places where men are alone with the God of the all-searching eyes. But there is no part of scripture which can be dispensed with, because every one of its truths and precepts answers a divine purpose in some way.

"Our third reason for holding to the entire Bible is that it was Christ's book. He knew it, loved it, believed it, called it 'Truth,' preached it, practiced it, commended it to His disciples, put His approval on the very passages that are most railed at, and never intimated by a single word or sylable that he found any semblance of error in it.

'A few years ago, when it was announced that the revised version was ready for publication, the electric wires of the world were instantly busy carrying the news; and within 24 hours two and a half millions of copies were on the market. That surely does not indicate that the Bible is a 'back number' or that the people are willing to part with it.

"But your Bible, my friend, is of no use whatever, while it lies dust-covered on the shelf. It is like a lifeboat hanging on its davits, an admirable thing to look at; but when a struggling swimmer is helped into a lifeboat and saved, he thinks differently about it. 'Search the scriptures,' said Jesus; 'for in them ye (rightly) think ye have eternal life, and these are they which testify of me.'

"Take down your Bible and search it. The Book is its own best evidence. Search it with no hoodwink of prejudice on your eyes. Search it for hidden treasure. Search it as an inquiring child searches for wisdom in its mother's eyes. And remember the word of the Lord Jesus how He said: 'Except ye become as this little child—in filial faith and confidence and earnest inquiry—ye shall in no wise enter into the Kingdom of God.'"

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF DR. JORDAN IS ANNOUNCED

Memoires of Chancellor Emeritus of Stanford on the Press

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Announcement has been made by a New York publishing firm of the forthcoming publication of the autobiography of Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford university, and first president of that institution.

Californians are expressing much interest in the publicatin, not only from the standpoint of Dr. Jordan's connection with Stanford, but because of the wide public interests he has had in the growth and development of the state, and his intimate connection with most of the great men in political life in America in his day, as well as wide acquaintance abroad.

The autobiography deals with his home and youth, and his early career. He was a student at Cornell and took a degree in biology there. His government service and excursions into many countries as a scientist, and Agassiz's great school at Penikese are among the other themes dwelt upoon.

Dr. Jordan tells of the idea of Senator and Mrs. Stanford's idea of a great educational institution in memory of their only son, and of the planning and building of the school on Senator Stanford's Palo Alto ranch.

The opening of the school, under Dr. Jordan's new idea of collegiate education, which would allow great freedom of choice to students, and abolish the old classic prescribed courses that were the rule everywhere else, and the predictions of eastern papers that "professors would for years lecture to empty benches," are also dwelt upon. Every professor at the University of California discouraged the project, believing that there would never be need for another educational institution in the state—for California then was smaller than Stanford is now.

To open the school Dr. Jordan gathered together a group of distinguished and enthusiastic professors, an unusual group which has probably never been equalled in starting a new institution, and seldom at many of the older institutions. Most of them were young men as professors go, and were men Dr. Jordan had known at Cornell, or in his other educational experiences. Among them were the late Dr. John Casper Branner, vice-president of the university, later president and president emeritus. He was a very distinguished geologist; Dr. John M. Stillman, authority of chemistry; Dr. Vernon Herman Kellogg; Dr. Charles D. Marx, at present vice-president, and many others.

The second volume of the autobiography deals with Dr. Jordan's friendship and relations with men of prominence, such as Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Elihu Root, Henry Ford, Lloyd George, Booker Washington, Jane Adams, Herbert Hoover and many others.

JUDGE COX TO HAVE OPPONENT

SANTA ANA, July 24.—Justice John B. Cox, "terror of the speeders," who has put Bebe Daniels and numerous other greater and lesser lights in jail for speeding over the sacred roads of Orange county, is to be opposed for office.

Darius F. Johnson of Santa Ana, recently graduated from the law school of the University of Southern California, is to oppose the man who has made Orange county noted amoung motorists. Justice Cox, with his varied homely decisions of unusual questions, has become quite a popular character in Southern California. Even Bebe couldn't get very peeved, and declared after she had served her sentence that h was an "old dear."

Whether young Mr. Johnson is to run on an anti-speeder platform or not is not known.

"Big Bill" Traeger, a candidate to succeed himself as sheriff, was born in Porterville, California.

WOODEN JEWELRY IS LATEST FAD

Brazil Makes Up First Samples of Her Rare Timber

SAO PAULO, Brazil.—(By Mail).—In paleolithic days, the "old man" took his stone axe to the quarry and chipped out a necklace of basalt for the wife's birthday.

Later he fashioned the necklace of a section of raw copper or a piece of leather cord with a snake's rattler and a handful of shark's teeth strung thereon.

After that the missionaries probably got his descendants in their clutches and converted tastes in jewelry to pink and blue beads.

It has remained for a school of arts and crafts in Sao Paulo to fill in the gap with the "wooden age."

Now, if the traveler knows where to find the institution, he may deck the wife out in the latest thing in mahogany necklaces and earings, Spanish and Parisian combs of black wood from Rio Grande do Sul and mosaic bracelets with what looks like a golden oak fundation, built up with bits of colored wood arranged in Grecian borders and Navajo blanket patterns.

Wooden jewelry is to be recommended as having the point of economy in its favor, but if the shopper is a connoisseur she begins to argue fine points of arrangement and whether her bracelet is made of a single circular cut of a branch and just what kind of a setting the motif has. Thus the field broadens out until it is harder work to buy gems that had their origin in a lumber yard than it is to select half a pint of seed pearls.

Brazil has approximately 200 classes of wood from which to make selections and some of these are of rare and beautiful colors when properly polished. There are brilliant red and greens that may be worked out in veritable floral cross-stitch patterns of mosaic and there are yellows that have the richness and gloss of gold.

Others look like ivory and others like ebony and still another somewhat tortoise shell. A student with a keen eye and steady hand can work out with no other material than the woods of his country paintings in inlay for the bottom trays, jewel boxes and the like. Some of the most effective patterns are of delicate cross-cuts of fine branches that have a design in the heart of the wood. This design may be set like a rare jewel in a pendanto or appliqued in other forms.

Pat was the man who did all the odd jobs about the place, and, owing to petty thieving, his employer instructed him to get a good yard dog. Pat was out all day and in the evening landed home with a dachshund.

"What on earth have you brought along, Pat?" queried his employer.

"Well, sir," said Pat, "he's the nearest I could get to a yard; he's 2 feet 11 inches long.

Did anybody ever know agitation for dress reform to reform dress? If you don't know your job, somebody else will.

LOS ANGELES IS GROWING BY MILES

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—If all the buildings, constructed during the past year were placed end to end, they would reach in a straight line from Los Angeles to Pomona, the chamber of commerce announces. But, built as they are, the sage remarks, they merely reach from the heart of the city out miles and miles to the city limits.

SIDE LIGHTS ON ENCAMPMENT AT MONTEREY

Carroll Parcher, Special Writer, Hits High Spots Going Up

By CARROLL PARCHER

Don't be alarmed at the official form—I've written so many of this kind that I'm getting the habit. I'm certainly praising Allah that I know a little about typewriting and clerical work. It's saving me a good many sore muscles and foot blisters. I sit around the orderly tent all day and make out reports and have a good time generally.

We got here Sunday morning and finished making camp Sunday and Monday. The camp is located on the hills above Monterey, and has a fine view of the bay. The bay itself is all right, but the fog that surrounds it gives me more or less of a pain. We had to issue overcoats this morning to keep from freezing to death.

The Press is pretty well represented here, all by star men. Sid Chambers is our orderly and general company jester. We have a lot of fun with him. The Swede is having a hard time. Some bird sent him about three miles down the line for 50 pounds of skirmish line the other night, and I don't believe he has recovered. Roy Weetman seems to be getting a kick out of this kind of life. Vissman is in charge of his company and has a hard row to hoe. He even has to rout them out in time for reveille in the morning. They were the last on the mess roll and had bread and syrup for supper the other night, but I guess they are getting along a little better now. We have certainly had good eats in our outfit. Something better than last year, I guess.

The folks sent me a copy of the world's greatest newspaper the other day. I was glad to see a suitable space devoted to happenings of the natives in the land of the midnight sun.

This camp has been named Camp Stevens in honor of the governor.

Speaking about high and mighty positions, I had a chance to be appointed battalion sergeant major the other day, but found out just in the nick of time that he had to ride a horse, so I declined with thanks. I'd rather remain a miscellaneous corporal for the rest of my life than have anything to do with one of those beasts.

There is a gang down at the chaplain's tent watching the fights and making a noise as though they might be interested. I guess I'll knock off and go down and look them over.

Remember me to all the natives. It seems as though I have been away long enough to be completely forgotten.

"Your honor, I'm a misunderstood man."

"But you are charged with assault and battery on this person with a black eye."

"That's just the point, your honor. I slapped him on the back. It seems he wasn't feeling well and he slapped me on the jaw. The very next time I had occasion to use my right hand I discovered it was folded up."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

FIRST LUTHERAN MARKS FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

"Hitherto Hath the Lord Helped Us," Is Topic of Dr. H. C. Funk

Impressive services marked the fifth anniversary celebration of the First Luhteran church yesterday, at which the Rev. Dr. H. C. Funk delivered an inspiring sermon on lessons, Acts 3:1-16, text, I Sam. 7:12. He said in part:

"Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

We come this morning to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the dedication of this church. Let us call to remembrance the promise of Jehovah: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses burst out with new wine." You all know that I am proud of my church. And I take great pleasure in praising the Lord for the wonderful things He has done for us; for the Lord hath helped us, and that right early.

I was talking to one fo the greatest preachers in this country some time ago. He had had an attack of insomnia, and he said to me: "I should have gone mad, had it not been for my grip on God. In the hour of my great need, God graciously came to me and helped me."

If any people on earth ever had great reason for being thankful to God, it was certainly the children of Israel. Notwithstanding their backsliding and disobedience, God raised up a mighty deliverer for them in the person of Moses, the greatest lawgiver the world has ever known.

He raised up Joshua, the purest character in the old testament scriptures, to lead them into the land of promise.

But that is a good ways off, and I want to get nearer home today. And let me say right here, that if there is any man on earth that has specail reason for being grateful to God, your pastor is that man.

At the age of 15 years he went out into the world without a dollar. And when I wanted to give something to God, I said, Lord, I haven't anything to give. And He said, "Son, give me thine heart." I gave myself to Him. It was all I had to give; and I want to testify that from that time until now the Lord has wonderfully blessed me.

And now, my beloved: if there is any church that has great reason for being grateful to God, I believe it is this church.

God has worked through her for the blessing of many souls. These have been five years of preparation, and you will remember that it took him 40 years to prepare Moses for his task. During these five years we have learned full many a needful lesson, one of which is that it is the spirit of can't that kills.

When we came to you a year and a half ago, some folks said our number is so small that we can't afford to have a minister. But others said we can and we will. Well, you have one, and what is more, you are contributing three times as much to the support of the pastor as you did before, and more than a hundred new members have been added to the fold.

What does that mean? It means that with the help of God you can accomplish wonders. It means that God has moved upon the hearts of the people and raised up friends for the church. It means that God is the midst of her; that the Lord has helped her, and that right early.

In the third chapter of Acts, beginning at the second verse, we read: "At the gate of the temple which is called eBautiful." The holy place, and further inward the most holy place, the walls of which were of the whitest marble, and the roof of which was gleaming gold, and the splendor of which was so dazzling that when the sunlight fell upon it, it was as though another sun were kindled there on Mt. Moriah.

The courts were rich with curtains and sumptuous with carvings. There were vast clusters of golden grapes, each cluster as large as a man; and nine gates gave entrance from the streets, overland with gold and silver.

And there was one more towering and resplendent gate, made of solid Corinthian brass, the gate most eminent of all, the gate called Beautiful. Indeed, every temple of God should be a gate called Beautiful.

God's house ought always to be the most beautiful place in the community. And, moreover, God's people should not complain when called upon to contribute of their earthly means to its adornment.

When the church was ni a state of comparative poverty a mound of clay thrown up with a spade served as an altar, and the mound was acceptable to Jehovah.

But when the church increased in numbers and advanced in sivilization and refinement an altar of wood overlaid with brass superseded the altar of earth.

Again, when the church multiplied in numbers and wealth, the altar was made of wood overlaid with fine gold.

In short, as the church increased in wealth, a just proportion of it should flow into the sanctuary; let there be a gate called Beautiful.

And now, beloved, let us make our church a gate eBautiful.

But you say, how?

By your presence. "Now Peter and John went up together into the temple. What for? To worship. What does that mean? The etymology of the word worship is "worthship." So they went up into the temple to acknowledge the worthship of Jehovah.

Those that remained away missed something worth while, whereas the poor beggar who was present received a blessing.

And that reminds me that tho church to be beautiful must be benevolent. Ah, yes, how much this poor crippled, sinful humanity needs.

It needs hospitals for its sick, and missions for its sins, help for disaster and sympathy for it woes.

Again let me say, you can give what you have. Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none, but such—" Poor man; he really did not need money. He needed just what Peter had. "In the name of Jesus—."

If the Lord has blessed you with silver and gold, give that; and if it is the sympathy of a cultured soul, give that, if you want to make this a church beautiful.

Every member and friend of the church owes it to give something to its support as an expression of gratitude to God. We must rebuild our church. We must build a gate called Beautiful; one that will reflect the glory of God and do honor to the church we love.

And he who contributes to the building of a monument in the form of a temple for the living God, where the word of God is dispensed in blessing upon mankind, for the use of those who may come in future years, is a benefactor, a blessed minister of good, the value of which can be estimated only in eternity.

Such a man will be helping others while he himself is walking with the redeemed of God.

Give, brother, give; and when you make your will do not forget your spiritual mother, the bride of Christ, the church of purity, the church of power.

Such a church has no room in it for dance halls, card tables and the like; for when these things come in, respect nad reverence for the house of God go out. This is not the place for such things. There is an eternal law of fitness, and these things cannot be winked at, for the restraining influence of the gospel of Jesus Christ is the need of the hour. The world already has more than enough of such things. Why should the church stoop down and soil her garments with them?

I have often stood at the corner of Third and Market in San Francisco and admired the Spreckels building. It is 18 stories high, a tall, slender, towerlike structure.

The architect and the builder planned to sink literal wells through the sand for which San Francisco is famous, until they drilled into a solid stone formation for the foundation, reinforced with steel and a solid concrete base.

On April 18, 1906, an earthquake wrecked large portions of the city. It tried the work of every man. They said the Spreckels building must be among those to have gone down.

But the building stood; and why; Because it was founded on a rock.

Ah, yes, on Christ, the solid rock, I stand; all other ground is sinking sand.

Yes, we must all give something. A good man, who gave $5 a Sunday to the church, observed that a poor woman always put in her dime every Sunday. He told his pastor that she ought not to contribute anything; and that he would like to pay that much more to relieve her.

The pastor spoke to the woman about it in a kindly way. But she said: "The Lord has helped me to raise my family. The children are all well, and I do so much want to give something to Jesus for all He has done for me." No, the other man couldn't take her place, for it would be robbing her of a personal joy, and this made the church to her a gate called Beautiful.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS RETURN FROM CATALINA

Brown and Husky, They Report Thoroughly Good Time

Y. M. C. A. boys, who have been in camp at Catalina, reached Glendale Sunday night about 8:30, coming up from Wilmington, in a special Pacific Electric car.

They were accompanied by Secretary Rex Kelley, and leaders Howard Butterfield, W. E. Kliewer, Fred B. Mattie, Rev. E. E. Ford, Dr. A. D. Smith, J. W. Cotton, S. T. Nichols and Clarence A. Hall, of this city; Prof. Hayden of Citrus union high, Coach David Sturgis, Frederick Vance Evans and Charles A. Schick of Monrovia, and Rev. Richard Brown of San Dimas.

The outing was evidently very beneficial to Secretary Kelley, who looks the picture of blooming health, but he is glad to be at home again and free from the responsibilities of so large a camp, though he is loud in his praise of the assistance rendered by the other leaders, particularly Dr. Dwight Smith, who left his practice to go and look after the physical welfare of the youngsters, putting in a busy 11 days extracting cactus thorns, dressing stubbed toes, treating sunburn and other incidental ills. There wasn't a case of serious illness during the whole period and the behavior of the moys was so fine from start to finish there was no occasion for any discipline.

The last big hike was a climb over Mount Black Jack, at an elevation of 2000 feet, to Little Harbor on the other side. The following day the boys had a goat hunt, bringing in two mascot kids, who so instantly responded to the petting they received that they stayed with the boys and ran around the camp without being confined in any way. They will propably miss the bottled milk with which they were refreshed.

All the camp fires were conducted by the boys until Thursday night, when the leaders put on a minstrel show, John W. Cotton well blacked, and dressed in a boy's bathrobe, much too small, and jockey cap, easily carried off the honors.

Friday evening's campfire was devoted to exchange of words of appreciation of camp awards to the number of about 55. These consisted of sweater emblems and medals for championships in athletic events, in the three divisions, according to weights, Francis Graves of Eagle Rock carrying off the championship for the light weights, John Wardell of Glendale the championship for the middleweights, and a Monrovia boy, the championship for the unlimited weights. George Hall of this city captured the championship for horseshoe throwing.

At the last camp-fire Saturday night the camp will was read, which bequeathed to the fishes the tortois shell classes of Dana Van Loan, which he lost while fishing. The will also provided that the camp spirit was to be held in trust until the next camp in 1923.

The last morning in camp witnessed a pajaman parade and plunge. Those who hesitated were waltzed into the surf willy-nilly.

The theme of Bible study during the camp was "convictions" and a regular camp school of religious education was conducted, based on the fundamental convictions of Jesus was maintained.

The next camp at Catalina will be for Hi-Y's of Southern California and will not open until September 1.

In the interim the grammar school Y groups will make overnight hikes to Red Triangle cabin in the San Gabriel canyon, but no regular meetings will be held until after school opens.

As proof of the growth of the Y. M. C. A. in this district Mr. Kelley stated that it now numbers 26 groups against 17 last year, each group averaging 15 boys.

BOY SCOUTS ARE HAVING GOOD TIME

Fred Killick, Swimming Instructor, Reports on Work to Daily Press

Fred H. Killick, life-saver and swimming instructor at the boy scout camp at Catalina island, has just returned from there, and reports a very wonderful time among the boys. He states that Mayor Robinson is much improved physically, that he has been trying to hike with the boys and also enjoys swimming.

Mr. Killick left Howland's landing at 11:15 Sunday morning and landed at the Isthmus, taking the steamer "Betty-O" to Avalon, a distance of about 18 miles south from valon. He mailed 30 letters to all parts of the states from the boys in camp, to their parents, and brought 71 letters from the boys to the mothers and fathers and to their scoutmasters in Glendale. He also delivered one personally to Mrs. Robinson from the mayor.

The boys go in swimming at 10:30 and again at 3:30. The period for beginners is one-half hour and the same time for advanced swimmers.

Mr. Killick examined the boys for their tests in swimming, life-saving and first aid. One rather severe test was that of a scout swimming 100 yards in his clothes and with his shoes on, and without touching the bottom he unlaced his shoes and took off his clothes to his swimming suit. The water was so clear that his clothes were later recovered. This young man passed his test, but he was too fatigued to undertake a completion of his examination, which will later be completed by some other examiner.

The last entertainment Mr. Killick gave was on Saturday night, and was a demonstration on two trees about 20 feet apart, with 100 feet of sash cord, which will support two or three women. He tensioned two parallel cords, and one foot above these taking a rope across to serve the purpose of a hammock tent. Two blankets were then resorted to, one placed on the parallel cords below the ridge rope for the tent, folded into thirds, about two-thirds over one-third, this making a safe hammock. It is called Killick's hammock tent and is especially convenient and safe for the sick or wounded, and will keep its occupant safe from all harm, being so high in the air.

This method of making a hammock without needles, pins or other equipment, save the blanket and rope, was learned in northern Alberta, Canada, from an Indian squaw.

Mr. Killick has lectured to about 200,000 students in Canada and down the coast from Seattle to San Diego, making a specialty of boy scouts, campfire girls, policemen, firemen, soldiers and sailors, as they are the most appreciative of this mental food, which is so essential on account of its primitive and simple nature.

Mr. Killick has been invited to come to the opening of Glendale's new municipal swimming pool by Mayor Robinson, and he no doubt will attend.

RAPPS REPORT ON K. OF C. PICNIC

Mr. and Mrs. Vermill Rapp of 411 Cameron place returned yesterday from Yosemite valley, where, as members of the Knights of Columbus excursion, they spent ten days, which were filled with strenuous, delightful enjoyment. They located at one of the comfortable camps of the valley, hiked to all the points of interest, including the big trees, and last but not least, the trip through the "Mist trail." Mrs. Rapp says:

"This ten mile jaunt through the mist is certainly strenuous, but when you attain the heights you know you are well paid for your effort. oWrds that tell of its beauty can hardly be commanded. n fact, the grandeur of Yosemite, the beauty of the whole valley, beggars description.

"Of course, Glendale looked restful to us, but a month's time would not be too long to spend in this wonderful valley."

Unqualified endorsement of the candidacy of "Bill" Traeger for re-election as sheriff, was given this week by Nathan Newby, president of the City Club of Los Angeles, executive committee member of the church federation, and an active member of the state Anti-Saloon league and the county Anti-Sallon league.

Truths in Epigram

It is a condition which confronts us—not a theory. — Cleveland (1837-1908)

The good generally displeases us when it is beyond our ken. — Nietzsche (1844-1900).

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence (185-159 B. C.).

LESSONS OF ELECTION FIGURES

Analysis of figures of the senatorial contest of 1916 serves to dissipate the notion that Senator Johnson is invincible. On the other hand, such analysis points to Charles C. Moore as the next senator from California. The day when Johnson seemed to hold the state in the hollow of his hand belongs to a time before he had made the record upon which he again seeks preferment. At the time when Willis Booth was his opponent, Johnson was at the very zenith of his power. Backing him then were strong political elements of both parties. No longer are these men his adherents. They have announced withdrawal from support of the senator, and have given their reasons.

In 1916 Johnson defeated Booth for the nomination by 15,064 votes. He, a San Franciscan, carried San Francisco by 10,071, Sacramento, where he had lived as governor, by 4680. It is apparent, then, that these two cities alone were almost responsible for the Johnson victory. Booth was from the south. From the tension that has existed as between the two sections, it is fair to assume that a southern candidate who received 22,089 San Francisco votes while the northern candidate was receiving 32,160, was doing remarkably well. The former tension no longer exists, which is to say, there will be at the south no reaction unfavorable to Moore, who while a resident of San Francisco, is a citizen of the state, with business interests and personal friendships throughout the commonwealth.

Working in behalf of Johnson were such men as William Kent, Marshall Stimson, Francis J. Heney and Chester Rowell, each with a distinct following and definite influence. This year they are against him, and openly for his opponent. The popularity of Moore in the north is as great as that of Johnson ever has been, far greater than it is now. Local pride in the bay region will not feel an impulse to aid Johnson, since in his defeat, the honor would fall to another northern man. So far as the south is concerned, Moore is identified with it to a degree that Johnson never has been. In 1916 a change of 7533 votes would have changed the result. Counting the known defections, it is not a rash surmise that the change will be even more marked. Added to the situation is the new vote, representing thousands who have poured into California during the last half decade, and whose political traditions are not colored by memory of the days when Johnson was a dominant figure.

Objections to Johnson rest in part on the fact that he has flouted and defied the expressed wishes of his constituents. This was particularly in relation to the four power treaty, the splendid project devised by the administration. The President was entitled to the fullest support of republicans. It was the desire of California that he receive it. So far as lay in the power of Senator Johnson, such support was denied. On the contrary, Johnson acted and spoke in accord with the utterances of his editorial employer, the bitterest foe of the administration, proprietor of papers notorious for disloyalty. This was so far from pleasing California republicans that in itself it appears adequate to change enough votes to cause the nomination of Moore.

Moore is more widely known than was Booth. His reputation is that of a constructive and forceful personality. He has accomplished much for San Francisco and for the whole state. He is deeply in sympathy with the purpose of President Harding, and would be glad to sustain the executive in further efforts to create and preserve world peace. Considering that Booth carried twenty counties, and came approximately within 100 votes in each of carrying twelve others; considering that Moore is a far stronger candidate than ran against Johnson in 1916, and that Johnson is far weaker than at that time, the outlook for Moore, not merely hopeful, takes on the aspect of certain triumph.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE

The death of Lord Northcliffe, now rumored as imminent, would mean the removal of a picturesque and almost unique figure. There is a dynamic force in such a personality that is difficult to realize. It seems impossible that a mere human being should have builded himself into an institution, directed a multitude of interests, carried an executive burden under which a dozen ordinary individuals would have grown weary, and yet Northcliffe has done all these things. His regular business has been the deft accomplishment of the impossible. From small beginnings, and with no capital but his native endowment of intellect, he made himself the leading publisher of England, wielder of potent instrumentalities for the moulding of the empire's destiny. He has been sensational in the sense that he has been, to the utmost, frank. Doubtless he feared God, but he feared no man. He was no respector of rank. No official was too high or powerful to be safe from attack if Lord Northcliffe deemed his purpose wrong or his methods faulty. Thus he had won the tribute of hatred as well as of admiration.

His breaking health is not a surprise. That one body and one mind could endure the stress so long has been a marvel. The report that he was failing mentally, that he would be forced to withdraw from all his activities, came before the report that his career was near the end. Without question his great work will be carried on, but not by any single director. Only once in generations appears the individual with capacity for a task so vast.

THE FAILURE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Margaret Belden was sixty-two years old.

She was lying in bed now, awake at 2 o'clock in the morning. Her eyes were wide open. She was thinking thoughts that were like earthquakes.

DR. FRANK CRANE

The whole point of view of her life seemed to be threatened. Every fundamental principle she had believed in was giving way. She was not alarmed, for she was a woman that did not know fear. But she was deeply disturbed and somewhat amazed.

All her life she had been a hard and strong woman. She had been the dominating member of the family. She had ruled her husband and her three children as a benevolent autocrat. They had never questioned her dominance. She had never questioned it herself. Until now.

Her husband had been weak, incompetent, good natured, and a failure. But by her strength of mind and will she had made the family well to do in spite of him. That they had comfortable money in the bank and occupied a certain social position was due entirely to her.

The last few days, however, she had been ailing. She was not herself and had lain down a good part of each day. Somehow she felt that her time was about come.

In the dim light of the night lamp she looked over to her husband who lay beside her. He was peacefully sleeping. His face was gentle and kindly. His thin white whiskers and hair looked to be the oldest part of his face. He was remarkably well preserved. He ought to be, she thought, he had never taken any responsibility in his life.

Yet how other thoughts came to her. There obtruded a dim suspicion that perhaps he had chosen the better part and that, after all, he had got more out of life than she.

He had never quarrelled with anybody. He had never spoken to her an unkind word, even under the severest fire of provocation.

He had never had his own way with anybody, even the children. He had the reputation of being "easy."

Book agents could sell him anything and stock jobbers could induce him to buy anything. And they would have done so had it not been for her.

He had no bad habits, he had never drunk nor gambled and there had never been a question of any other woman in his life. The only quasi vice that he had was that he loved his pipe, which, however, he never smoked except on the back porch or in the kitchen. Margaret would not stand the smell of tobacco in her best room.

She had always looked on him with a sense of pity mingled with a little contempt.

She now found herself looking upon him with a sense of envy. A strange doubt of her own excellence invaded her. For the first time in her life she was breasting the strong, deep waters of humility.

She was struggling with the old problem of what is worth while. What had she gotten out of life?

Efficiency, perhaps. Success, and her own way. But what had it brought her? Mostly worry and care.

She had struggled hard and faithfully for the prize, for the reward that comes at the end.

Yet her husband, the failure, had had that all along. He had had peace and contentment and there was not a soul that knew him but loved him.

She took his hand between her own and the tears came to her eyes.

He awoke.

"What is it, Margaret?" he inquired.

"Forgive me!" she said.

But he had no idea what she meant.

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article.)

Edna Rowell: "A discussion has arisen as to whether 'a day's work' and similar expressions are neuter possessive or a contraction of 'a day of work,' and we will appreciate advice from you in the matter. We find your articles very helpful, and are keeping a file of them." Answer: 's is a symbol of possession, as is also the word of. Therefore, the two foregoing expressions are not synonymous, as the 's is connected with day in the first example, and the of with work in the purpose of the first example is to give expression to the idea work and describe its length by "a day's,," while that of the second example is to give expression to the idea of day and to describe this day by "of work": work (lasting a day); a day (made up on work).

John H. Freal: "Your column has proved both interesting and instructive. Is the following sentence correct: 'Your peremptory leaving was unexpected'?" Answer: Peremptory means not admitting of debate or expostulation. Unexpected means coming without warning. Therefore, a peremptory leaving could hardly be unexpected, for some one would have enough warning to attempt expostulation; and an unexpected (without warning) leaving could hardly be peremptory, for there would be no time to make even an attempt at debating the question. Consider the following: your leaving was unexpected; your peremptory leaving was a surprise; your leaving was peremptory.

Vocabulary

"Imagination, as it is too often misunderstood, is mere fantasy, the image-making power, common to all who have the gift of dreams, or who can afford to buy it in a vulgar drug as De Quincey bought it."—Lowell.

Fantasy: "The forming of unreal, chimerical, or grotesque images in the mind; a mingling of incongruous or unfounded ideas of notions; disordered or distorted fancy; fantastic imagination . . . a fantastic image or thought . . . a phantasm . . . whim . . . caprice . . . gavary . . . unrestrained imagination." —Century.

Pronunciation: fan' ta-si (a as in at; a as o in winsome; i as in habit).—Century, Webster, Standard and Oxford.

For observation: Note words in definition; fantastic (adjective); fantast (noun); fantastical (adjectice); fantastically (adverb); fantasticalness (noun).

Origin: fantasye (middle English from Latin from Greek) —fancy.

THE LISTENING POST

In the selection of the great men of the world there is ample room for speculation.

For choice.

For the expression of personal opinion.

Doubtless no two lists made by analysts and historians would be identical.

Because the choice depends on what we think greatness to be.

And men differ about that.

The philosopher and the financier differ essentially perhaps in their views of greatness.

The military genius would differ from the advocate of peace in any circumstances.

And before we could reach a conclusion we must first determine what is greatness.

And there would be endless difference of opinion as to that.

For you, who may be reading this Listening Post, what is your notion of greatness?

Is it wealth?

Political power and influence?

The preferment of your fellows?

Genius in art of music or sculpture?

What is your idea of greatness anyway?

* * *

It has been said in this column before that the greatest man is that man who has brought most happiness to most people.

And nothing has changed that opinion.

It still stands.

And the lists of great personages ought to be built about that notion.

* * *

That would at once eliminate many persons who have occupied pages of history.

It would eliminate most of the rulers of men.

In times past.

Because happiness has been wrought for men by teachers and philosophers rather than by rulers.

How about Columbus?

He discovered a new world.

He sailed on when sailing on might mean destruction.

He sailed on in pursuit of an idea.

Which gave us a new world.

New thinking.

New freedom.

Out of the discovery of the new world came opportunity for the oppressed.

A great democracy.

Or republic, as you will.

The refuge of the oppressed of the world.

So Columbus did a lot to give people opportunity.

And happiness.

How about the inventor of printing by movable types.

Or the first maker of books and pamphlets.

He enabled people to read and learn.

Exchange ideas.

To grow.

* * *

When we come to naming the greatest personages of the world we open a vast field.

And the whole choice is likely to be arbitrary.

For the world has had many great men.

Scores and hundreds of them.

Men whose names perhaps are barely known today.

And yet whose spirits and influence have moved the world along the way of progress.

Sometimes directly.

Sometimes indirectly.

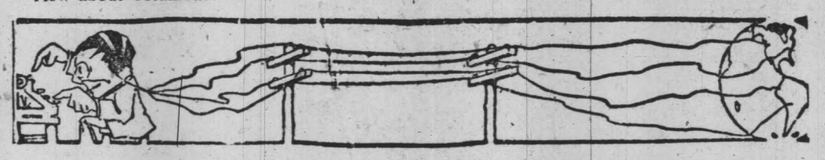
But the rule still holds:

The great persons of the world are those who have given the most happiness to most people.'

And then comes the other question: "What is happiness?"

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

Aubade—By Sir William Davenant (1606-1658)

The lark now leaves his wat'ry nest,
And climbing shakes his dewy wings,
He takes this window for the East,
And to implore your light he sings—
Awake, awake! the morn will never rise
Till she can dress her beauty at your eyes.

The merchant bows unto the seaman's star,
The ploughman from the sun his season takes;
But still the lover wonders what they are
Who look for day before his mistress wakes.
Awake! awake, break thro' you veils of lawn!
Then draw your curtains, and begin the dawn!

Water Intoxicating When Taken Intemperately

Water in excess is an intoxicant. With the aid of an extract from one of the ductless glands and also without such assistance in controlling thirst, Dr. Leonard G. Rowntree of the Mayo Clinic has proved that excessive water drinking by either man or animals intoxicates.

"Water intoxication," he says, "is hard to produce as nature has provided against the accumulation of water in the body in poisonous amounts. Through thirst the intake of water is regulated to the body's needs. Unless the intake is greatly in excess, the output through the kidneys and the skin takes care of the surplus.

"In order to control the thirst, an extract from the small ductless gland at the base of the brain was used. Under the influence of this drug, the patient kept drinking water until he developed marked headache, nausea, a staggering gait, unsteadiness of muscle and inability to stand or walk, which lasted for a few hours."

This same process was tried with dogs with even more striking results. Cats, rabbits and guinea pigs were also sent on a dangerous water jag by the excessive taking of ordinary drinking water or distilled water irrespective of the temperature of the fluid and without the aid of the glandular extract. Although the quantities of water are excessive, about an ounce per pound of body weight every hour, the amount absorbed is definitely limited. The intoxication is not accompanied by significant changes in body temperature or by constant or marked changes in the blood volume. Blood pressure is somewhat increased.

The convulsions of water poisoning are cerebral in origin and of extreme violence at times, usually lasting from one to 10 or 15 minutes. A strong salt solution administered intravenously after the early evidence of toxicity prevents, as a rule, the onset of convulsions and coma. All the symptoms of uremia can be experimentally induced by excessive water.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TARIFF BLUNDERING

[New York Commercial]

Probably nowhere is there greater disgust with the tariff bill than in the senate itself. It is undoubtedly realized by most of those who are advocating the high tariff that they have blundered in interpreting the sentiment of the country.

The present tariff bill has been conceived under a misapprehension. The republican party has been traditionally in favor of a high tariff, but the so-called Old Guard has not been able to comprehend that times have changed, and that pre-war ideas of tariff making are out of date in post-war times. These high-tariff advocates of the McCumber stripe have evidently gone on the theory that the country went republican at the last presidential election on the tariff issue. It did nothing of the kind. The tariff was scarcely discussed during the campaign.

The tariff bill, as it now stands, was a monumental blunder, but that the senators themselves probably realize this is shown by the reduction in rates in many items that are being forced on the floor of the senate. As the debate proceeds it is shown where high rates of duty are placed upon articles where there is no justification. In some cases the goods are not produced in this country at all and do not come into competition with American manufacturers. The bill does not reach the problem of protection to American industries in a scientific manner. In tariff making there is a certain maximum level that is justified for revenue-producing purposes. Beyond that rates are justified only to the extent of prohibiting ruinous competition.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

"Society is rotten at the core in America in so far as domestic life is concerned."

Such is an excerpt from a report recently made by a sectarian commission of distinguished membership. It has the merit of frankness, if the quality mentioned may be said to imply merit. That it lacks a basis of fact will be believed by many, and hoped by others.

HENRY JAMES

Even distinguished churchmen have been known to make earnest statements that upon analysis yielded much prejudice and only a residuum of truth.

There are foolish marriages, and in consequence, there are many divorces. There are homes in which the rule of love is not a controlling influence, and where faithfulness does not abide. There are parents incapable of the wise guidance of children.

The home still is the foundation of human society and the safeguard of happiness and security. It is the core of society, and it is not rotten. The rottenness is at the outer fringes. It exists in circles where the sweet, true meaning of home is unknown.

It is easy to get pessimistic at spectacular depravity; easy to draw up gruesome resolutions touching wickedness and wantonness. If this must be done, perhaps it would be well to leave the home out of the indictment.

Being human, the sectarian is prone to err. It is possible that when he is arraigning society in terms the most scathing and condemnatory, that he is annoyed that all society does not endorse his peculiar, and, to himself, logical and satisfactory tenets.

It is the theory that a recent shocking murder was due to the poison tongue of neighborhood gossip. The father of the victim says that he can so prove, and will.

Any process that would extract the poison sac of a gossip would be welcomed as a benison, reckoned especially blessed if fatal to the subject of the operation.

A man just arrested for forgery proves to have been out on parole after imprisonment for a similar offense, and to have served one previous complete term. He was passing checks of the size that permit the constant use of limousines, and living at ease.

Perhaps the incident may be twisted into an argument favoring the parole system, but no such effort is being made in these few lines.

A tract of land in Los Angeles has been sold for $2,000,000. Large sums will be expended on improvements, and then the tract will be disposed of in lots for fine residence purposes.

While such transactions are important, they are not sensational. The mere fact that a city is growing beyond all precedent, and that this is one of the indications, does not cause a thrill, and therefore little is said about it.

One of an analytical turn of mind might find interest in studying the relative importance of a $2,000,000 realty sale and a row between a film star and one of his wives.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This is getting to be the season of the year when the office door opens apologetically and a nice, fresh-colored boy steps timidly in.

"Pardon me, sir," says he, "are you at all interested in this hideous dingbat which I am about to offer you?"

And you say "No." And he goes away. And you grin to yourself. And out in the hall the poor young man is standing in front of another door, trying to screw his courage up to the point of going in. And when he gets home that night mother will say brightly:

"How many did you sell today, Harold?"

And Harold will mutter and pretend to be angry and make an excuse to go outside. And by and by mother will drive him almost mad by her desire to stroke his head. Because he is very low in his mind, and that sort of thing is not calculated to help a fellow to buck up. Father is apt to snort at him and say unkind things. But Harold may state in rebuttal that it isn't his fault at all. The chances are he has been driven from home by this itch that parents have to see their sons get busy. They did not stop to consider whether they are getting busy on the right line.

My beloved uncle staked me to a job when I was a kid of Harold's age. He got me an agency to sell photogravure copies of "The First Dissection," which is a picture of absorbing interest to anatomists and historians, perhaps, but is calculated to drive a nervous woman out of her mind. For one entire summer's day I solemnly plugged about from door to door, gaining entrance by subterfuge and then suddenly unlimbering my battery of horrors on the kindly lady who had let me in. It portrayed, as I recall, a cadaver and several surgeons with large knives. It was not until dewy eve had crept upon me unaware that a doctor crushed a commercial career that had opened well at rosy dawn.

"Who would buy that condemned thing?" he asked, viewing it with undisguised distaste. "Not for a dining room. Nor a parlor. And you can't expect a doctor to hang it in his waiting room. And if he put it in his consultation room—what would the patients say?"

So I traded the photogravure to a barkeeper for a nickel cigar and a little cheese and pickles and went my way. My uncle was indignant, but I felt that I was the one to be angry.

Take a hint, Harold. If they drive you into the streets with things to sell, at least make certain the things are what people might conceivably buy.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

A certain woman lecturer on feminine freedom advocates the retention of the woman's maiden name after marriage. When asked about the name of the children in such a case, she airily replied: "Oh, that does not matter so much. Let them take the name of the parent they love best. Mine took my name. It's really very simple!"

Very. Of course no parents would have the slightest resentment over the child's decision and its announcement to the world at large. Very simple, indeed. And as new-born infants as a rule cannot make decision, which name would be given them until they attain the proper age? If the name of one parent were given them, and they were so called by playmates, family, and teachers, and they afterwards decided that they loved the other parent best and in consequence changed the surname, that would make no confusion, of course. And suppose that one or the other of the parents was inclined to dispute the decision of the child and tried bribery or other methods to win out—would the surname again be changed according to the child's decision? It is all so "simple."

Yes, it is. But not in the way that the lecturer meant. Does freedom consist in names? Cannot Mary Smith, married to John Brown, feel just as free if she takes the name of the man she presumably loves, along with his devotion? Does not real freedom consist in heart feeling, inner consciousness, mutual action?

Why not get beneath the surface of life rather than to forever be raking the debris that clutters it?

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Four thousand pounds of rose petals yield only about 20 ounces of attar of roses.

Logwood, the timber which is exported from Haiti all over the world, was introduced into that island in 1730 for the purpose of furnishing blossoms which would yield a superior nectar for bees.

Buffalo bones have recently been found in a cave in Malheur county, Oregon, 100 miles further west than any other authoritative evidence of the occurrence of buffalo heretofore.

Fully $46,000,000 worth of wheat, corn, oats, grain, sorghums and broom corn is destroyed annually by chinch bugs, which can withstand most climatic conditions, fungus diseases and parasitic enemies.

INTERNATIONAL CHEMICAL CO. STARTS WORKS

First Unit Under Way on Kenilworth Street Acreage

Glendale, the "fastest growing city in America" and the finest home city in Southern California, is "stepping out" some in manufacturing.

The latest important manufacturing enterprise to locate here is that of the International Chemical Products company, which has erected and has in operation the first unitl of its plant on a 3½-acre tract at 223-225 Kenilworth street.

This company will manufacture printing inks, driers, cleaners, varnishes, colors, etc., used in the printing and lithographic trades. It will also manufacture a line of automobile supplies which will include the following: "Motor Pep," Tip Top Radiator Cement," "Spring Life Never Rust Secret," "Tip Top Carbon Remover" and "Once Over Polish."

All of the products manufactured by the company will be according to formulas said to be of highly scientific character and owned exclusively by it. Men of ascertained expertness will have immediate supervision of all branches of manufacture in the plant and the aim of the company will be to turn out products that will by their merit command a market so wide as to fully justify the word "International" in the corporate name.

The first unit of the company's plant consists of a two-story building 24x100 feet in dimensions, and in this 20 people are already employed, although the enterprise is really only just getting under way. On the present ground site it is intended to erect five units of about the size of the initial one.

The International Chemical Products company is capitalized for $250,000, and includes in its directorate many prominent Southern California business men. The officers and directors of the company are as follows: E. O. Fitz, president; Geo. W. Strang, vice-president; R. E. Fitz, treasurer; G. H. Schellenberger, secretary; H. C. Hatterscheid, sales manager; J. A. Jevne and Arthur G. Munn, directors. The following named are also stockholders in the company: Harry Chandler, F. R. Kellog, A. L. Funk, Chas. B. Smith, Ella M. Impey, H. W. Petermeyer, R. W. Meeker and H. J. Poppelman.

This is a pay-roll enterprise. If the plans of the men controlling the corporation are carried out, it is practically certain that before many years the comparatively little plant of today will have expanded into a great institution employing an army of people who will have their homes in Glendale.

A glance at the names of the persons composing the company will afford ample reason for predicting that the plans referred to will find execution, for the list includes several who have been foremost in worth-while projects in Southern California, the kind of people who "do things." It is well understood that there is no lack of capital for all requisite expansion.

"TILLIE" CLOSES TODAY AT GLENDALE

Another well-known novel made its appearance on the local screen last night when "Tillie" was presented at the Glendale theater as the latest Mary Miles Minter Realart starring vehicle. Tonight will be the last showing.

"Tillie" is an Alice Eyton adaptation of the Helen R. Martin novel "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid" and play by Frank Howe, Jr.

It is entirely different from Miss Minter's usual type of plays—effectively demonstrating the real versatility of this beautiful and popular screen star.

A tramp who had seen better days, appealed to a well-dressed woman for assistance.

"But how is it that you, an educated man, can be a tramp?" asked the lady.

"Because madam," replied the tramp, "it is the only calling in which a gentleman may accost a lady without an introduction."

WILLIAM KENT ANALYZES THE CAMPAIGN

Takes Issue on Senator Johnson As Labor's Friend

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—William Kent, humanitarian, welfare worker, progressive and advocate of labor's rights of national repute, takes violent issue with the satellites of Hiram Johnson, who are claiming the present United States senator is 'labor's friend.'

Kent, once a supporter of Johnson, but now a warm advocate of Charles C. Moore for the republican nomination for U. S. senator, after a careful study of Johnson's record while in Washington, declares it is difficult to find cause for either labor or humanitarian workers to support Johnson. When Kent, who served California for six years as a congressman, ran for United States senator two years ago he was given the solid support of labor, because his own Washington record showed him 100 per cent humanitarian for labor legislation. Mr. Kent's statement follows:

"It is difficult to find reason, in the senatorial record of Hiram Johnson, for advocacy of his cause by labor or for other humanitarian reasons. He is making great capital out of the introduction of a constitutional amendment to meet the guess of the supreme court when it declared previous child labor legislation to be unconstitutional. Such an amendment is needed and is a worthy object to strive for, but the past history of Senator Johnson as having taken any conspicuous or laborious part in its passage. That would not have been as easy as talking, or as claiming it as his own peculiar issue.

"Meantime, Senator Johnson voted against the feeding of children in congested New England and New York, when he voted for a high tariff on Canadian milk and cream. This would exhibit more of a log-rolling, vote-betting campaign, than an interest in child welfare. It is all part of a record of noise rather than deeds.

"The coal industry of the United States is in hideous condition. The terms of employment are unbearable. With misery stalking the families of underpaid miners, with waste of a diminishing natural resource, and a threat not only of cold in the coming winter, but of the stoppage of industry, curtailment of production, and general suffering.

"It would be unfair to ask of any individual senator a program of action to relieve this situation, but Senator Johnson claims progressive leadership, and in this vital matter his voice is silent.

"The railroads of the country furnish the arterial circulation. Without this service, chaos will result. A progressive outlook recognizes the intimate association of railroad workers in performing their necessary tasks. The Esch-Cummins bill recognized the sanctity of private ownership, and went so far as to practically guarantee profits of high valuations. The Plumb plan, toward which many progressive senators leaned, was a partially formulated attempt to secure to the government the ownership of the railroads at actual values, and to recognize the partnership interest of the vast force of operatives with a wage scale which would be enhanced by extra efficiency as shown in lowered transportation costs. The records of congress are silent as to Senator Johnson's position, except that he refrained from voting on the Esch-Cummins measure, and has not been heard as an advocate of any system of railroad operation or control—certainly a serious lapse in the leadership he claims.

"The cause of labor—the cause of progress—of all humanitarian causes—require freedom of discussion—comparing of notes—free speech and free press. With all the abominable violations of constitutional guarantees—with all the unjust persecution meted out to those who would in peace and without sedition discuss the economic phases of our present system, in hope of better things, we find no occasion in which the voice of Senator Johnson has been raised. His plea that William Randolph Hearst should have entire freedom to publish matter collected and written by others was hardly a fight for legitimate freedom of the press, but doubtless was worthy of the fee he charged.

"The great conservation policies he has passed by—he has had no part in the legislation that would insure to the people of the United States the development and proper distribution of the water power assets. The grabs of the oil reserves have slipped by without his attention.

"World peace and welfare thru better understanding, through abolition of menacing armament, he fought to the utmost of his power. One does not need to be an economist or a student to realize that those things that burden the world with fear and taxation, bear heaviest upon those with the least margin between them and want. A few may profit, but the many may suffer. Whether the altruistic policies he has attacked were judicious or injudicious, he has fought them all with a savage resentment aimed at the man occupying the presidential chair.

"I can find in the record of Senator Johnson no constructive work. I find him dodging vital issues in the Esch-Cummins bill, and in the Newberry case. I can find no semblance of economic thought or courage in his pitiful attempt to pick up votes through tariff log-rolling. I find him fairly explosive when opportunity presents itself for self-advertising, and I find him disloyal to the president, whether Wilson or Harding—never attempting to help, but always to hamper.

"He has not attempted, through fair and disinterested effort, to secure a meeting of minds looking toward beneficial results, when there is difference of opinion, but he has uniformly treated the president as though by the fact of his election he had deprived Senator Johnson of his rightful due and had justified an envious hatred.

"The cause of labor—the cause of humanity—the cause of progress—call for wise, unbiased and unselfish judgment and action. I might in some measure agree with those supporting Senator Johnson, if they could demonstrate a single act in his senatorial career that exhibits these qualities, especially that of unselfishness."

Stories of Famous Cases

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

In Two Parts—Part 2

Jimmy the Rat leaned forward, his face tense.

"Say," he asked, "did you ever get hit in the solar plexus? Right smack in the core? You try to shut your mouth and you can't. Everything goes up and down in waves. Well, that is the way I felt at that moment. Old Camison croaked!

"Dave," I said, "you got me dead wrong. If old Camison's been snuffed, it's not on me. I never croaked a guy in my life and you know it. I got scared out—right there something hit me. It was the memory of that funny sound that I had heard—the sound that had frightened me. Dave was watching me like a hawk.

"Come on, kid," he said. "We know you didn't do it. You never had the nerve. But who was your pal?"

Jimmy the Rat twisted around in his chair. His face was suddenly drawn and haggard.

Well, that was the lay of the case. Dave worked on me, and so did the rest of 'em. They were sure I had a pal who had croaked the old millionaire while I was cleaning up the loot. All the talking I could do didn't help me any. They stopped about 8 o'clock and I spent two hours of hell after being questioned, talked to, grilled, and put through a cross examination that would have turned me against my own mother.

At noon I sent for a dick I had seen walking in the corridor.

I found out afterward he was captain of the dick bureau. There was something about him I liked. You know what I mean—he had a square face. I didn't think much of any of 'em, but I knew instinctively I could trust him. He came in smiling.

"Well, Jimmy," he said, "going to come through?"

"No," I said, "I ain't got nothing to come through with. But I'm going to tell you something."

He sat down on the edge of the cot and rolled a cigarette while I made my spiel. I told him the whole works from beginning to end—just how I got in, what I was trying to do, and all. Then I told him about the noise upstairs—that funny thud. He listened without a word. When I had finished he got up.

"Alright, Jimmy," he said. "I'll give it the once over. If you're lying it isn't going to do you any good. If you are telling the truth, we'll find it out."

That was all. He took me on my face value. He didn't ask any questions. He knew when I sent for him I wanted him to get me just that way, for whatever you can say about it, a dick has a hunch just as often as other folks—provided he is a good dick, and this hombre was.

What he dug up I never knew. He came back in a couple of hours and stuck his head in the cell.

"I checked up on that matter," he said, "and I guess we won't hang the murder on you yet, Jimmy. But it was darned close."

Jimmy the Rat sank back in his chair and waved his hands with a gesture that might have meant many things.

"That's about all there is to it," he said. "They slipped me a term in the big house on the spoons and never a word about the murder. I've often wondered what he dug up there that wiped up the slate of that. As I see it they could have tied the murder on me just as easy—that's circumstantial evidence."

The wind was howling now with the full strength of an eastern blizzard. Windows rattled and buzzed in the casements and the screams of the wires had risen to a screech. Neither of us, however, was interested in the climate. My own mind was traveling back—skipping days and weeks and months like a beam of light. It went back to a night similar to this one, when Captain Martin Riley, then head of the city's detective bureau, had asked me to go with him.

"Jimmy," I said abruptly, "would you like to hear the rest of that story—of the Camison murder?"

Jimmy's mouth flew open.

"You—were in on that?"

"I guess I was the one that cleared you, Jimmy," I replied.

"I never knew who it was, but I remember Riley told me at the time what I had done would save a man's neck from stretching."

"Man," said Jimmy the Rat, "I'd give my eye teeth to know that. When I came out of the big house Riley was dead and none of the others knew the real inside—"

And so, sitting before the comfortable glow of the log cabin, I told Jimmy the Rat the finale of his own story—the last chapter that he had never heard—the dramatic end of Camison and the millionaire.

"Riley and I went up to the Camison house," I told him. "By special orders the coroner had left him just where he fell. He was lying face downward in the bathroom—"

"With his throat cut," interrupted Jimmy the Rat.

"Yes," I said, "with his throat cut, Jimmy. Riley and I looked around. He was dressed in a bathrobe. His shaving things were laid out on the washstand. His shaving brush was on the shelf, covered with lather, still wet. As the police had reconstructed the crime, his murderer had stepped up behind him as he stood before the mirror shaving, and cut his throat from ear to ear. There may have been a struggle—we could not tell. One thing was queer—the razor was missing. Riley thought it had been taken away by the murderer to prevent fingerprint work, but I hardly believed that.

"While Riley was moseying around through Camison's effects, looking for a motive, I examined the body. On the tips of the fingers on the left hand I found two severe burns—bad burns, right into the flesh. I looked at the other hand. There was a burn in the palm of that. I called to Riley.

"I begin to see light here," I said. "What do you make of that?"

"Riley studied it for a long time. Then she shook his head."

"I give it up, Nick," he said. "What do you make of it?"

"Well," I said, "I think it is the answer to our crime. If it is, it is the oddest killing that has ever happened in the city."

"Let's have it," said Riley. He was always impatient.

"I reconstructed it for him in brief, just as I shall give it to you, without going through all the long chain of links that flipped through my head when I saw those burns. Camison had returned home that night, as you saw him, very late. He intended going out early in the morning, so we found out afterward. So he decided to shave himself.

"Standing in front of the mirror in the bathroom he started to shave. He turned on one globe of an overhead bracket lamp just above his head. He shaved the sides of his face and started to shave under his chin. It was dark under there, the light being above his head. So he reached up and pulled the chain of the fixture to turn on another light. His hands were wet and you know how a leaky fixture will reach for wet hands.

"When he pulled that chain he got a bad shock—a shock that was so severe that it jerked his arms back. The hand that held the razor whipped across his throat with the muscular reflex—I doubt if he knew what he had done until the cut juglar began to spout. Then it was too late——"

Jimmy the Rat sprang to his feet, his eyes gleaming.

"You mean Camison cut his own throat?"

I nodded. That was exactly what I did mean. That was exactly what Riley and I, working far into the evening, determined there in that house with the dead body of the millionaire on the floor between us and the telltale burns on his fingers for a clue.

"I told Riley that if the theory held we would find Camison's razor still in the room and quite a distance away from the body where he had flung it with the reflex muscular action produced by the sudden shock of the current. Riley got down on his knees with a flashlight and peered under the bathtub. There against the wall was the razor."

Jimmy the Rat sank back weakly in his chair, his hands working convulsively.

"Holy smoke!" he ejaculated. "Camison did it himself—"

After a bit he rose suddenly and came around the table with his hand out.

"Nick," he said, "I got to shake hands on that. You saved me from—"

"Forget it, Jimmy," I replied. "I am glad I did. I guess it taught you a lesson—your narrow escape. I know it taught me a lot of things. For one thing, it taught me that—"

"Circumstantial evidence is the bunk!" said Jimmy the Rat emphatically.

"Sometimes, Jimmy," I corrected. "Don't forget the gold spoons—"

Jimmy the Rat picked up his hat and climbed into his overcoat.

"The only answer I got to that is good night!' he said with a grin and went out into the storm, leaving me to that sense of satisfaction that sometimes comes to a detective as the only compensation in his business—the feeling that grows from the knowledge that an innocent man was saved from a fate he did not merit through a little "head work" at the right time.

There as no gratitude and little reward in the business, and yet, somehow, looking back over the years, that seems reward enough.

DOHENY ARRIVES ON HIS NEW YACHT

SAN PEDRO, Calif., July 24.—Edward L. Doheney's palatial yacht, late of New York, has been brought to anchor here, and will hereafter make San Pedro harbor its permanent home.

The yacht is richly equipped and is reported to have cost well over $100,000. Doheney intends to make a number of pleasure cruises about the Pacific, it is said.

'CROSSROADS OF NEW YORK' ENDS AT T. D. & L.

Great Sennett Comedy to End Local Run Tonight

Mack Sennett's current comedy-melodrama "The Crossroads of New York," marks a culmination of the producer's long ambition to present a dramatic story of the struggles of the country boy in a big city. The plot has been worked out by Director F. Richard Jones with a capable cast that includes George O'Hara, Kathryn McGuire, Noah Beery, Ethel Grey Terry, Herbert Standing, Dot Farley, Billy Bevan, Eddie Gribbon, Charles Murray and Mildred June. The picture is sin seven quick reels.

How much thicker blood is than water fails to be apparent when Michael Flint, fresh from the country, rushes into the city to greet his affluent uncle and is given a job as street cleaner in the Mack Sennett six reel comedy-melodrama, "The Crossroads of New York." The plot presents, in strong and dramatic fashion, the adventures of a newcomer to the city business world and has a dramatic background of Broadway and the stock exchange.

CITY PRINTING

NOTICE OF AWARD OF CONTRACT

Pursuant to Statute and to Resolution of Award of the Council of the City of Glendale, California, adopted the 19th day of July, 1922, directing this notice, notice is hereby given that the said Council, in open session, on the 6th day of July, 1922, opened, examined and publicly declared all sealed proposals offered for the following improvement, to-wit:

The improvement of

as described in Resolution of Intention No. 1502, passed by said Council of the 17th day of May, 1922, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work, and of the district to be assessed therefor.

The Council of the City of Glendale determines that serial bonds shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) or over for the cost of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually, by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid. Said bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide a system of street improvement bonds to represent certain assessments for the cost of street work and improvements within municipalities, and also for the payment of such bonds," approved February 27, 1893, and of all Acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof.

And thereafter, to-wit: On the 19th day of July, 1922, awarded the contract for said work to the lowest regular responsible bidder, to-wit: The City of Glendale, at the prices named for said improvement in its proposal, on file for said improvement, to-wit:

8-inch Class B Cast Iron Water Pipe, per linear foot, laid	$2.30
6-inch Class B Cast Iron Water Pipe, per linear foot, laid	1.80

And that said award has been approved by the Mayor of the said City of Glendale.

Clerk's office, City of Glendale, California, July 20, 1922.

A. J. VAN WIE,
City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

M. of Thursday, the 3rd day of August, 1922, sealed proposals or bids for the following improvement, to be done according to Specifications and Plans adopted for the said work, on file, to-wit:

The work on a portion of

and of certain streets intersecting therewith in the City of Glendale, described in Resolution of Intention No. 1538, passed by the Council of the City of Glendale June 15, 1922, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work; Specifications No. 42 and 47, referred to in said description, are on file in the office of the City Clerk, and also posted near the chamber door of the Council.

Bonds will be issued as provided for in said Resolution of Intention No. 1538.

Bidders must file with each proposal or bid a check payable to the Mayor of the City of Glendale, certified by a responsible bank, for an amount which shall not be less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal, or a bond for the said amount and so payable, signed by the bidder and two sureties, who shall justify before any officer competent to administer oaths, for double the said amount, and over and above all statutory exemptions. In bidding use blanks which will be furnished by the City Clerk upon application.

Glendale, California, July 20, 1922.

A. J. VAN WIE,
City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

RESOLUTION NO. 1599

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ORDERING CERTAIN IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON A PORTION OF WILSON AVENUE AND CALIFORNIA AVENUE AND CERTAIN STREETS AND ALLEYS INTERSECTING THEREWITH IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. That the improvement herein described is required by the public interest and convenience, and the Council of the City of Glendale, State of California, hereby orders the improvement to be made on a portion of and certain streets and alleys intersecting therewith in the City of Glendale, described in Resolution of Intention No. 1538, passed by said Council June 15, 1922, to which Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work.

SECTION 2. The district to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses of said work and improvement is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1538, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for further description of said assessment district.

SECTION 3. Bonds will be issued as provided for in said Resolution of Intention No. 1538.

SECTION 4. The Glendale Daily Press, a daily newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, is hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution and notice inviting street work proposals shall be published in the manner and form and by the persons required by law.

SECTION 5. The City Clerk of the City of Glendale is hereby directed to post conspicuously for five days on or near the chamber door of the Council in the manner and form required by law, a notice with Specifications, inviting street work proposals or bids for doing said work; and said City Clerk is hereby directed to publish for two days in said newspaper hereby designated for that purpose, as aforesaid, in the manner and in the form required by law, a notice of said work inviting sealed proposals or bids for doing said work, and referring to the Specifications posted or on file.

Said notice shall require all proposals or bids offered to be accompanied by a certified check or bond, either, as prescribed by law, and for an amount not less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal. Said City Clerk is also hereby directed to publish this Resolution for two days, in the manner required by law, in said newspaper designated for that purpose, as aforesaid.

Adopted and approved this 19th day of July, 1922.

SPENCER ROBINSON,
Mayor of the City of Glendale.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE, ON THE 13TH DAY OF JULY, 1922, DID, AT ITS MEETING ON SAID DAY, ADOPT A RESOLUTION OF INTENTION, NUMBER 1592, DECLARING AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That

from the northerly curb line of Wilson Avenue to the southerly curb line of Lexington Drive, including all intersections of streets or alleys, be resurfaced in accordance with Plan No. 534, Profile No. 134, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 43.

Second: That a twelve (12) inch class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in Adams Street and across intersecting streets and alleys along a line seventeen (17) feet easterly of and parallel to the westerly line of Adams Street, said pipe to extend from the southerly line of Wilson Avenue to a line seventeen (17) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of Lexington Drive, together with all connections, valves, fire hydrants and appurtenances, all as shown on Plan No. 534-W, Profile No. 134, and said pipe and appurtenances to be used for fire protection and the distribution of the municipal water supply of the City of Glendale. Said pipe shall be laid in accordance with said Plan and Profile and between the points on the lines and grades and at the elevations designated thereon, and said pipe, connections, valves, fire hydrants and appurtenances shall be constructed in accordance with the Plans and Profile therefor, designated as Plans Nos. 448, 439, 534-W, Profile No. 134, and in accordance with Specifications No. 42, for furnishing and laying cast iron water pipe in the City of Glendale; and Third: That a four (4) inch Class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in Adams Street along a line seventeen (17) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of California Avenue said pipe to extend from the said pipe line described in paragraph second hereof to the easterly line of Adams Street and along a line fifteen (15) feet northerly of and parallel to the westerly prolongation of the southerly line of Stanley Avenue, said pipe to extend from said pipe line described in paragraph second hereof to the easterly line of Adams Street, and that a six (6) inch Class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in California Avenue along a line seventeen (17) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of California Avenue, said pipe to extend from said pipe lines described in paragraph second hereof to the westerly line of Adams Street, together with all connections, valves and appurtenances, all as shown on Plan No. 534-W, and Profile No. 134, said pipes and appurtenances to be used for fire protection and the distribution of the municipal water supply of the City of Glendale. Said pipe shall be laid in accordance with said Plan and Profile and between the points on the lines and grades and at the elevation designated thereon, and said pipe, connections, valves and appurtenances shall be constructed in accordance with the Plans and Profile therefor, designated as Plans No. 534-W, No. 439, and Profile No. 134, and in accordance with Specifications therefor, adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and designated as Specifications No. 42 for furnishing and laying cast iron water pipe in the City of Glendale.

Fourth: That galvanized iron service pipes of the sizes and at the locations shown on Plan No. 534-W be laid in said Adams Street from said pipe line mentioned in paragraph second hereof to a line drawn parallel to and approximately twelve (12) inches easterly of the easterly curb line of Adams Street and to a line drawn parallel to and approximately twelve (12) inches westerly of the westerly curb line of Adams Street. Said service pipes shall be laid in further accordance with said Specifications No. 42.

SECTION 2. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved February 27, 1893, and the Acts amendatory thereto, serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvements, other than that part thereof to be paid out of the City Treasury, as hereinafter specified; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January, every year after their date, until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 3. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefited by the proposed work or improvement as described herein, and to be assessed to pay the costs and expense thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet of each of such lots, pieces or parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district, and such other matters as are required by law.

SECTION 4. The Council of the City of Glendale hereby orders that two thousand four hundred seventy-one and sixty-seven hundredths ($2471.67) dollars of the cost and expense of the work described in paragraphs second and third of Section 1 hereof shall be paid out of the City Treasury from the Public Service Budget Fund, which fund is hereby designated as the fund from which such cost and expenses are to be paid.

SECTION 5. All Maps, Cross-sections, Plans and Profiles referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Maps, Plans, Cross-sections, Profiles and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

The district to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said work and improvement is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1592, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for further particulars of said work.

C. L. HILL,
Street Superintendent of the City of Glendale.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE, ON THE 13TH DAY OF JULY, 1922, DID, AT ITS MEETING ON SAID DAY, ADOPT A RESOLUTION OF INTENTION, NUMBER 1591, DECLARING AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That

from the easterly line of Lot "B," Tract No. 1374, as per map recorded in Book 18, page 100 of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California, to the easterly line of said Tract No. 1374, including all intersections of streets or alleys, except those portions which are already graded to the official line and grade, be graded to the official grade heretofore established therefor, the same to be done in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 870, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39.

Second: That a cement sidewalk of the width of five (5) feet be constructed along each side of North Adams Place from the easterly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374 to the easterly line of said Tract No. 1374, except where sidewalk is already constructed to the official line and grade. Said work to be done in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 870, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 31.

Third: That a cement curb of the class designated as Class "B" in the hereinafter referred to Specifications be constructed along each side of the roadway of North Adams Place from the easterly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374 to the easterly line of said Tract No. 1374, including all returns at all intersecting streets and alleys, except where said curbs have already been constructed to the official line and grade. Said curbs shall be constructed in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 870, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 31.

Fourth: That all of the roadway of North Adams Place from the easterly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374 to the easterly line of said Tract No. 1374, including all intersections of streets and alleys, be oiled and surfaced in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 870, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39, except that three gallons per square yard of seventy-five per cent. (75%) oil shall be used in the base, one gallon to each application.

Fifth: That

from the northerly curb line of Lexington Drive to the southerly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374, and its easterly prolongation, and from the northerly lines of said Lot "B" to the southerly curb line of Monterey Road, including all intersections of streets and alleys, except those portions which are already graded to the official line and grade, be graded to the official grade heretofore established therefor, the same to be done in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 869, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39.

Sixth: That a twelve (12) inch Class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in Adams Street and across intersecting streets and alleys along a line seventeen (17) feet easterly of and parallel to the westerly line of Adams Street, and in the center line of that four (4) foot Right of Way for water pipe purposes only, owned by the City of Glendale, and lying in Lot "B" of aforesaid Tract No. 1374, said pipe to extend from a line seventeen (17) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of Lexington Drive to a line nineteen (19) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of Monterey Road, and that a four (4) inch Class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in Adams Street along a line five (5) feet northerly from and parallel to the westerly prolongation of the southerly line of Lot D, Tract No. 1026, as per map recorded in Book 17, pages 70 and 71 of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California, said pipe to extend from the aforementioned pipe line to the easterly line of Adams Street, together with all connections, valves, and appurtenances, all as shown on Plan No. 542-W, Profile No. 869, and said pipe and appurtenances to be used for fire protection and the distribution of the municipal water supply of the City of Glendale.

Said pipe shall be laid in accordance with said Plan and Profile and between the points on the lines and grades and at the elevations designated thereon, and said pipe, connections, valves and appurtenances shall be constructed in accordance with the Plans and Profile therefor, designated as Plans Nos. 448, 439, 542-W, Profile No. 869, and in accordance with Specifications therefor, adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and designated as Specifications No. 42 for furnishing and laying cast iron water pipe in the City of Glendale.

Seventh: That a cement sidewalk of the width of five (5) feet be constructed along each side of Adams Street from the northerly line of Lexington Drive to the southerly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374, and its easterly prolongation, and from the northerly lines of said Lot "B" to the southerly curb line of Monterey Road, with sidewalk returns at Monterey Road, except where sidewalk is already constructed to the official line and grade. Said work to be done in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 869, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and designated as Specifications No. 31.

Eighth: That a cement curb of the class designated as Class "B" in the hereinafter referred to Specifications be constructed along each side of the roadway of Adams Street from the northerly line of Lexington Drive to the southerly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374, and its easterly prolongation, and from the northerly lines of said Lot "B" to the southerly curb line of Monterey Road, including all returns at all intersecting streets, except where said curbs are already constructed to the official line and grade. Said work to be done in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 869, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and designated as Specifications No. 31.

Ninth: That all of the roadway of Adams Street from the northerly curb line of Lexington Drive to the southerly line of Lot "B" of said Tract No. 1374 and its easterly prolongation, and from the northerly lines of said Lot "B" to the southerly curb line of Monterey Road, be oiled and surfaced in accordance with Plan No. 542, Profile No. 869, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39, except that three gallons per square yard of seventy-five per cent. (75%) oil shall be used in the base, one gallon to each application.

SECTION 2. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved February 27, 1893, and the Acts amendatory thereto, serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvements, other than that portion of the costs and expenses of said improvement to be paid out of the City Treasury; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually, by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid. Said bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide a system of street improvement bonds to represent certain assessments for the cost of street work and improvements within municipalities, and also for the payment of such bonds," approved February 27, 1893, and of all Acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof.

And thereafter, to-wit: On the 13th day of July, 1922, awarded the contract for said work to the lowest regular responsible bidder, to-wit: Peter L. Ferry, at the prices named for said improvement in his proposal, on file for said improvement, to-wit:

HOLY FAMILY FETE IS BIG SUCCESS

Affair on Brosseu Lawn Nets $146 From Splendid Attendance

The ladies of the Holy Family Catholic church entertained with a benefit garden fete on Saturday afternoon and evening at the home of Miss Emma Brosseau, 439 Vine street. The affair was certainly a huge success, both socially and financially, as the ladies netted about $146 and there was a splendid attendance both during the afternoon and evening.

The beautiful lawn of the Brosseau home was radiant with many colored Japanese lanterns and the grounds were dotted with many booths. There was one for ice cream, one for candy, one for punch, one for cooked foods and still another for a grabbag. These proved very popular and the ladies in charge were kept pretty busy. The committee in charge included Mrs. J. F. Zimmer, Mrs. Frank McDonald, Mrs. Mildred Vogel and Miss Emma Brosseau.

There were a great many children present and they were entertained with games by Miss Gladys Sharpe and Miss Ada Geiss.

A splendid musical program, in charge of Miss Dorothea Vogel, was presented. Miss Patch sang a clever group of Irish songs. Mrs. Catherine Antunez sang, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and "Until." Marie Haller sang, "When Spring Is Here" and "To You." Miss Dorothea Vogel was the accompanist.

In the evening Mrs. Antunez sang the same numbers and Miss Vogel and Mrs. Antunez rendered a duet, by special request, "Whispering Hope," accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Curran.

Several beautiful violin numbers were given by Miss Hazel Linkogel, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Pearl Curran. Edwin Albright rendered a group of Indian songs, with Miss Vogel as accompanist.

Cards were also enjoyed in the afternoon and during the evening dancing was participated in.

CAMPAIGN FOR TRAEGER IS UNDER WAY

Pasadena Man Is Made General Chairman of Committee

The active campaign for the re-election of Sheriff William I. Traeger has been commenced with the opening of headquarters in rooms 204, 205 and 206, the Grosse building, Los Angeles, the phone number of which is 823678.

The general chairman of the "Traeger-for-Sheriff campaign committee" is Benjamin E. Page, a prominent resident of Pasadena, and a well-known business man.

In charge of the headquarters—and with a plentiful supply of placards and cards for outs of town friends of "Big Bill," is Mary E. Smith. Miss Smith is one of the best known campaign managers in the west, if not the country. She successfully handled the Johnson and Stephens campaigns.

Endorsements of Traeger are pouring in, and Miss Smith says he will be able to give some of his personal attention to his campaign as soon as the Meadows murder case, which he was instrumental in solving, is cleared up.

Shortly the list of names of the out of town sponsors of Traeger will be issued.

ROBERTS HOME IS JOLLY SCENE

Give Benefit Party for Tuesday Afternoon Club

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Roberts, 617 East Elk avenue, was the scene of a jolly card party given Saturday evening. This was one in a series of affairs being given for the benefit of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

The spacious rooms of the Roberts' home were artistically decorated with roses, carnations and dahlias, combined with an abundance of asparagus fern.

The evening was devoted to the playing of five hundred and bridge, following which dainty refreshments were served to 48 guests.

First gentlemen's prize went to Dr. J. L. Flint and first ladies' prize to Mrs. Harry Whaley. These were for bridge. Malvern C. Barker won first prize for gentlemen at five hundred, and Mrs. Arthur Dibbern, ladies' first prize.

BEREAN BIBLE CLASS MEETING

The Berean Bible class of the First Baptist church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Louise Pollard, 117 South Louise street on Thursday afternoon, July 27. Several matters of interest to the class will come up at this meeting.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

"I AM out of work and need an income quite as badly as do most of us when expenses are high and there is no money put away for the rainy day—that we always dread but seldom feel is going to overtake us." This is a portion of a letter recently received by a man whose influence had been asked in securing a position for another man. How many there are who, if suddenly deprived of their means of livelihood, would be compelled to make a confession similar to the one quoted in the letter!

S. W. STRAUS

It is "the rainy day that we always dread but seldom feel is going to overtake us" that should be guarded against through practices of thrift. And, no matter how sincerely we may believe that the rainy day never will overtake us, the fact remains that countless numbers of persons have been deceived by these same false hopes. Perhaps no mistake is as common as this failure to provide for the rainy day. Too many are willing to take a chance—to trust to luck that sickness, unemployment or some other misfortune will not overtake them.

It is just as essential to the welfare of the average person that he make provision for the rainy day as it is that he safeguard his physical health.

The man who fails to look to the future and to make provision for times of adversity is his own worst enemy. Those who practice thrift may not always reach the heights, but they never will reach the depths.

FANSET TO OPEN NEW PLANT HERE

Buys Lots on Glendale Avenue for Big Plant

John H. Fanset, the dyer and cleaner, who has recently returned to establish a retail business in Glendale near the corner of Brand and Broadway, says he will stay by it until it is well organized and will then have to return to his plant in Los Angeles.

He has purchased five lots on Glendale boulevard just south of the Southern Pacific tracks, in Los Angeles, and plans to move his factory to that site for greater convenience in handling the two branches of his business. He has been a resident of Glendale for the past 15 years and says he couldn't be induced to live anywhere alse.

MRS. PARKER TO 'TAKE THE AIR' AT UNIVERSITY

To Give Program at Southern California Station Today

A radio vocal program given by Mrs. Charles A. Parker of this city, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Champlain, pianiste, also of Glendale, from the Times broadcasting station, is to be given today in the Bovard auditorium at the University of Southern California.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon, at the weekly meeting of the faculty and music students of the summer session at the university, Miss Hazel Linkogel of Glendale, accompanied by Miss Champlain, will play a group of violin numbers.

Miss Linkogel, who was a member of the harmony class in the music department of Glendale high school last year, is taking advanced work in harmony at the university this summer, and has been appointed to correct the papers of the beginning class in harmony there.

REV. E. E. FORD IS BACK FROM CATALINA

Full Congregation Greets Return of Pastor to Baptist Church

"From Mount Olivet," was the subject of the discussion given yesterday morning by Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city. This was the first sermon preached by Rev. Ford since his return from Catalina and there was a "full house" to greet him and to listen to the wonderful discourse.

He took his text fro mthe gospel according to St. Luke, and thruout the sermon had to do with Christ's last appearance among men.

"The life of Jesus Christ," said Rev. Ford, "who can tell it? Hundreds of artists have tried to paint the face of Jesus, but the results of the efforts of none of them has been tolerable. The true Christian has a picture of Christ that can never be put on canvas. It simply cannot be done.

"For the past year I have taken you along the trail of the life of Christ. I hope my talks have been helpful to you. This has been one of the most wonderful years of study in my life. I have enjoyed it beyond measure. The closing sermon in the series will be given next Sunday morning. It will concern the glory that will be received when He comes again to this world.

"Since this year's study I have much more fear of Jesus Christ than I ever had before. This fear is not ordinarily considered fear—but reverence. God is a wonderful God. There is no backstairs, as some seem to think, to the presence of God. I bow before Him this morning in reverence. More than ever before do I have reverence for God's book, for His day, for His house. I have as much reverence for Old Glory as anyone here, but even our grand old flag must go down before God, His kingdom and His word.

"God is a God of justice. The wages of sin is death. No man can sin and get away with it. It can't be done. God is merciful, but He also is just. No man is sent to Hell through the will of God, but through his own deeds and words.

"'Follow me,' said Jesus and He led them out toward Bethany. I try to put myself in the place of Jesus as He was passing through the garden. His thoughts doubtless travel back to the night He was betrayed.

"It is said that a cloud received them out of his sight. There is no record of any noise, and clatter, any whirlwind, or anything of the kind. I like to think that it was God's cloud that received Him—that it was the same cloud that figured a number of times in the scriptures. Yes, it was doubtless God's cloud. It received them out of His sight, but not out of their faith. It was done instantly, not gradually.

"Those who were left—notice this—did not weep that day. There was nothing in the way of mourning among them. They worshipped God and continued to Jerusalem with great joy. 'Ye shall live also,' Jesus had told them. The death of a Christian is victory. There is really nothing to worry about. He simply goes on to glory. They believed He was still alive, and He was and is still alive. He promised He would come in the same cloud again to this world. So they rejoiced with exceeding joy. Let us do that also, and continue to live uprightly and look for his reappearing."

BEST EXPLAINED BY CHAIRMAN BEN. W. HOOPER OF THE UNITED STATES RAILROAD LABOR BOARD IN HIS STATEMENT OF JULY 1ST READING AS FOLLOWS:

"In this case the conflict is not between the employer and the oppressed employes. The people of this country, through an act of congress, signed by President Wilson, established a tribunal to decide such disputes over wages and working conditions which are submitted to it in a proper manner. It is the decision by this tribunal against which the shopcrafts are striking.

"Regardless of any question of the right of the men to strike, the men who take the strikers' places are merely accepting the wages and working conditions prescribed by a government tribunal and are performing a public service. They are not accepting the wages and working conditions which an employer is trying to impose. For this reason public sentiment and full governmental power will protect the men who remain in their positions and new men who may come in."

Adequate provisions have been made for the full protection of all new employes, the same as old employes who have remained loyally at work.

Applicants Should Apply at

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen of East Windsor road, who have been enjoying a pleasant week's vacation at Long Beach, are expected to return to their home today.

Mr. R. L. Milligan of 114 East Park avenue, who some time ago broke his ankle, is now able to get around with the aid of crutches. It will probably be one or two months longer before he will be able to walk without crutches.

James Baker of Bellflower is here visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lovell of 505 North Maryland.

Mrs. S. A. Davis of 118 West Colorado street, Mrs. M. E. Blythe and Mrs. S. E. Doughty, were the dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. George Blythe at Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bright of 319 North Maryland were the dinner guests yesterday of Mr. Bright's brother, Mr. Will Bright of Los Angeles.

Miss Anna Keller of 520 North Louise spent the week-end at Catalina. She was accompanied by her friend, Miss Kelsen of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Mary J. Oliver and daughter, Miss Marie Oliver of 131 North Central avenue, entertained on Sunday evening, Dr. York, Dr. Margaret York, Miss Foy, Miss Cynthia York, Willard York, Bill Foy, Everett York, Dr. Cotton and Mrs. Lulu Percy. A very delightful evening of vocal solo and instrumental music was enjoyed.

Mrs. Herman S. Layer and sister of Berkeley, were the guests on Saturday of Dr. Jessie A. Russell. They are staying at the Virginia hotel, Long Beach, while watching operations of their oil properties on Signal Hill, where one of the largest gushers came in on their property.

Mrs. Dwight Stephenson of 32 West Cypress returned this morning from a most enjoyable week end spent at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones at Hermosa Beach. Mrs. Stephenson is also home again having been on a business trip to San Francisco for the last few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Warren of 1418 East Maple street and Miss Belle Holt and her mother, Mrs. A. Holt, enjoyed a picnic in Big Tujunga canyon yesterday. The trip was made by auto and the day was spent beneath the trees along the stream.

A party of Glendalians went on a "spree" to Vevice Saturday night. During the day, those comprising this party attended the Methodist picnic at Brookside park, at the conclusion of which they motored to the beach. Those composing the party were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reyburg, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nicolaus, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Starkey, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Warren, Miss Belle Holt, Miss Alma Smith, and Mr. Dennison.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Farie, of 4 North Louise street, had as dinner guests yesterday, Dr. and Mrs. Gee Cornell and daughter, of Pasadena.

Harry Sturges, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Sturges, of 310 North Cedar street, left today for Escondido via automobile, where he will spend several days.

Mrs. Frank E. Abbott, of 327 West California avenue, who has been suffering with an ulcer on the eyeball, is reported as slightly improved.

Mr. M. H. Spafford, of 314 East Chestnut street, and sister, Mrs. H. Baird, of Dyersburg, Tenn., and Miss Ruth Spafford, enjoyed a motor trip to San Gabriel recently where they attended the Mission play.

OIL SUBDIVIDERS VISIT GLENDALE

J. F. Lasley of the J. F. Lasley Interests of Signal Hill and Los Angeles, was a visitor here recently. Mr. Lasley is not a stranger to the business men of this city as he has done considerable business here.

Mr. Lasley has just opened a branch office at 200 West Broadway, and is running excursions to Signal Hill daily, except Monday.

Mr. Lasley is very heavily interested in oil lands on Signal Hill and is now disposing of one tract in unit form, but it is understood there are only a few units left and they will most likely be taken this week, as the Shell Lasley No. 1 well has already gone through several hundred feet in the quicksands and is expected in today or tomorrow. Both the Shell employes and Mr. Lasley seem to think that this well will be the largest well on Signal Hill. They feel confident that it cannot be less than 3800 barrels, because it is just across the street from the Shell Andrews, which is producing that amount, and the log is practically the same.

WILL PADDOCK YIELD TO CALL OF EAST?

Strong Effort Being Made to Annex California Sprinter

By JACKSON V. SCHOLZ
United Press Staff Correspondent

(Editor's Note—Jackson V. Scholz is one of the best known of American sprinters. He is from the University of Missouri—is the holder of several western records and was a member of the 1920 Olympic relay team that established the world's record for 400 meters. He has run with Paddock and is competent to write about the wonderful westerner.)

NEW YORK, July 24.—Charlie Paddock, champion sprinter of the world and holder of every outdoor sprint record worth while, will have an opportunity in the very near future to reply, either through the press or on the cinders, to a storm of criticism that is almost sure to arise as a result of his recent decision not to compete in the national championships this fall.

Whether or not Charlie will avail himself of this opportunity is a question, or, will he be content to rest upon the present laurels and leave the outcome of such a race to speculation and the mercy of the dopesters?

It was ever thus with champions and Paddock's career is proving no exception to the rule of those who hang up their shoes while still in their prime. There always were and always will be certain ones who prophecy "what might have been," and are not content to let the records speak for themselves.

The poor showing that Charlie made on the occasions of practically all of his eastern races in 1920, furnish unfortunate facts which are eagerly pounced upon by the doubters, who make no allowances for the effect of temporary slumps or changes in climatic or training conditions.

Loren Murchison, of the Chicago A. C., is perhaps the one who is conceded the best chance to beat Paddock, if Paddock is beatable. On the only occasions when these two have come together, Murchison has completely outclassed the Californian, although too much imprtance must not be attached to the indoor meets in which Paddock was undoubtedly handicapped by his lack oof experience on the "boards." In the final heat of the hundred meters at the Olympic games, Murchison misunderstood the starting commands and was left standing when the gun was fired. The only race, then, upon which one is able to draw any conclusions at all, is the final heat in the national championship hundred at Boston in 1920. In this race, which was won by Murchison, the judges gave Paddock third.

Charlie may have had a bad slump on that particular day. It is quite possible, as relapses of this sort are often experienced by athletics who have been for months under the tension of rigid training. On the other hand, he may have improved his starting between then and the present time, which is also a definite probability as Charlie at that time was not considered a fast starter.

In either case there is only one thing which will positively decide who is the faster of the two and that is a series of sprint races stretched over a period of several days. The probability of a meeting of this kind is small, but if it did materialize it would certainly be a classic that would go down in history.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

TODAY

JAMES W. FOLEY

Tomorrow—yes, tomorrow brings
The sorrow and the grief and pain;
It may be so, and all the things
I love may go nor come again.
I cannot say, nor can you say,
The loom of fate with weaving hums,
And I must find a smile today
And meet the future as it comes.

So little after all I know
In all the scheme and plan of things;
Now dawn, now dusk, now high, now low,
The heart of being sobs or sings.
I shall be happy for the light,
For joy and the surcease of pain,
Nor shall I fear the dusk and night,
Nor shall I tremble or complain.

This day is mine, for good or ill,
And I have strength to do my task,
Sands through the hour glass flow and spill,
Of no tomorrow shall I ask
Or plead or struggle to beguile
A secret from the hidden way,
It is enough that I may smile
And work and hope and trust today.

Tomorrow, yes—tomorrow brings
Its joy or sorrow, smile or tear,
The heart of being sobs or sings,
And all that is or might be dear
May fade and die, nor can I say
Or you; the loom with weaving hums,
But I shall have a smile today,
And meet tomorrow when it comes.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

HATTIE S. BEARDSLEY

Hattie S. Beardsley passed away Sunday, July 23, at the age of 56. She is survived by her husband, Chas. A. Beardsley, of 341 Oak street, and a daughter, Mrs. Eunice Hayhurst, of Glendale; a son, Howard A. Beardsley, of Tucson, riz., and two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Helsinstein of Tucson, Ariz., and Mrs. Vine McCreay of Canada. Funeral services will be held today at 3 p. m. from the chapel of Pulliam-Kiefer & Eyerick.

ALICE R. JOHNSON

Funeral services for Alice R. Johnson will be held today at 2 p. m. from the Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn cemetery. The deceased is survived by two daughters, Lucille R. Johnson and Margaret M. Johnson, and two sisters, Mrs. Bertha Barnhart of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Ethel Nance of Coachella.

AUTOS CRASH AT LA CRESCENTA

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Cobb of Los Angeles narrowly escaped serious injury when their car collided with another car on the corner of Los Angeles and Michigan avenues, La Crescenta, Sunday morning.

Mrs. Cobb was driving an Oakland, which was only slightly damaged. But the Saxon, driven by the other party concerned, was considerably wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb are former residents of La Crescenta and were making calls upon friends when the accident occurred. Outside of the damage to the cars and a severe shaking up, there was no serious injury

Don't expect the unexpected to happen too often.

'LARGENESS OF HEART' IS REV. EDMONDS' TOPIC

Presbyterian Divine Tells Congregation of Gift of God

Rev. W. E. Edmonds at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning used as his subject, "And God Gave Solomon Largeness of Heart—Even As the Sand That Is on the Seashore."

There are three things: the one who does the giving; what He gives; the largeness of His giving.

When I hear God gave, then I listen. It pays to do business with God. He repays running-over measure. But we are so filled up with second-best things, while He stands ready to fill with the best. And what He has given in the past, He still is ready to give now. He is just as anxious to give good gifts to us as to Solomon.

Heart-force is better than head-force. One may be a pigmy, but large with God. The measure of a man is his relationship with God. There is going to be great surprise up there, with the measures and the rewards. Have you ever realized that God is pulling His people up, seeking to draw them up to His plans for them?

Consider the characteristics of large heartedness. It has large conceptions of God, sees Him over against every hard place, and looks to Him to convert the little into the adequate. The large heart shows itself in love of the brethren, enabling us to be fair to the faults of others, and to see the good behind even their sins; it is merciful to the ones sinning, comprehending their circumstances and temptations.

Largeness of heart will keep us steady through a thousand petty things, ignoring and pressing through them. It gets the mote out of the eye. Largeness of heart will get such beliefs as are trifles out of the way of the real great work. Those who have it are the ones who truly do things. It is possible to live our lives the world around, never leaving home or stopping our business.

Our giving is a question not of arithmetic, but of the large heart. A man with a small heart never makes a large gift, no matter what it is. Largeness of heart shows in our prayers. Is your heart big enough to put a world in? You can't whittle the world down little and get it in; the heart has got to be broken to get it in. How did you ever get into Christ's heart? Because it was broken for you.

"How may I have this largeness of heart?" Do you want it? You can have it. "What does the dilation mean?" It means a death and interment of the old self life, and having the heart of Christ to put into you. Pattern your life by His heart that suffered and was broken for you and me.

WICKED PEOPLE ARE SONGLESS

So Says German Philosopher from Study of Human Voice

BERLIN, July 24.—A museum for living voices—more than 2000 phonograph plates of prominent personages, of wild tribes and all races—is in Prof. Wilhelm Doogen, of the Berlin public library.

The professor believes that from this extraordinary museum he could start a movement which would solidify peace in the world, and he is now trying to arrange for contact with American and other scientists.

"Furthering the mutual understanding of the peoples as well as of scientific progress," he said, "has always been the aim of our work. For instance, the general idea about the Ghurkas is that they are a savage tribe glorifying in bloodshed. Now take this record."

The sounds of a beautiful and melancholy tune ceased.

"Can anyone imagine a tribe having such songs and being a mere set of cut-throats," he continued.

"Wicked people do not sing," says the German prverb. "All human tribes, as we have confirmed, possess songs, some of which are merry and harmless ones, others full of passion and love, and some, the Slavic and Oriental races principally, which seem to be distilled out of sobs and tears."

Professor Doegen says that wherever he had given performances in Germany and abroad, the press has been unanimous in affirming that a wave of practical pacifism had emanated therefrom, more effective than the speeches made by political pacifists.

GILLETTE TENT TO HOLD MEETING

Mary Jane Gillette tent No. 18, Daughters of Veterans, will hold an open meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in American Legion hall, 610-A East Broadway. Mrs. Queen Danner, chairman of entertainment, and her committee have arranged an attractive programm of music and reading, to be followed by an "extra special" number which will create much amusement for those present, and someone may win a prize. Refreshments and community singing are also included on the program. All visiting Sons and Daughters of Veterans are cordially invited to attend and get acquainted with the local tent members and their friends.

BRANCH LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW BOOKS

List of Additions Are Announced by the Librarian

The following recent additions have been made to the Glendale branch library at the corner of Brand boulevard and Los Feliz road, this list being furnished by Librarian Charles H. Cushing:

The second volume of "The Outline of Science," has been received and is just as interesting as the first one, dealing with evolution, natural history, psychoanalysis, psychology and other matters. There are to be four volumes when the work is completed.

Valuable additions to the history collection:

"The History of the American People," by Woodrow Wilson, in ten volumes, is especially valuable on account of the many original documents it contains, such as the text of treaties, charters, proclamations, etc.

The following works by John Fiske:

"How the United States Became a Nation," "The Discovery of America," and "The Critical Period of American History."

Travel

"Afoot in England," by W. H. Hudson is in his usual happy vein. "Utah, the Land of Blossoming Valleys," by G. W. James, describes the state and gives an account of Brigham Young, polygamy and Mormonism.

Poetry

"Legends," and "Can Grande's Castle," by Amy Lowell. "Love Songs" and "Rivers to the Sea," by Sara Teasdale.

Nature lovers will welcome "The Wild Flowers of California," by Parsons, as well as "My Boyhood," by John Burroughs.

"Abroad With Mark Twain and Eugene Field," by Fisher, and "My Discovery of England," by Leacock, will appeal to the sense of humor.

"The Great Secret," by Maeterlinck deals with ocultism, past and present.

"The Principles of Psychology," by William James, in 20 volumes, a standard work on that subject.

"Radio for Everybody," by Lescarboura.

New Fiction

"The Moon Rock," by Reese; "The Vehement Flame," by Deland; "The City of Fire," by Lutz; "Merton of the Movies," by Wilson; "Gentle Julia," by Tarkington; "The Outcast," by Lagerlof, one of the best of the present day Swedish writers; "The Covered Wagon," by Hough; "The Road to the World," by Waldron; "The Prairie Child," by Stringer.

New Juveniles

"Merry Adventures of Robin Hood," and "Men of Iron" by Pyle; "Catty Atkins Sailor-man," by Kelland; "High Benton," by Heyliger; "Seizer of Eagles," by Schultz; "Bob's Hill Trails," "Trail Makers," and "Raven Patrol of Bob's Hill," by Burton; "Boys' Life of Theodore Roosevelt," by Hagedorn; "Kabumpo in Oz," by Thompson, sequel to the famous Oz books by Baum; "Wonder Stories, the Best Myths for Boys and Girls," by Bailey; "Hero Folk of Ancient Britain," by Wiltse; "Eskimo Land," by Hawkes; "Stories for Kindergartens and Primary Schools," by Wiltse; "Bimbi," by Rame; "America First, 100 Stories From Our Own History," by Evans; "Worth While Stories for Every Day," by Evans; "Myths of the Red Children," by Wilson; "The McCloskey Primer," "Pinochio," by Lorenzeni; Tod Marsh, the Boy Scout," "Ted Marsh and the Enemy," and "Ted Marsh on an Important Mission," by Sherwood; "More Jataka Tales," by Babbitt; "The Herford Aesop," by Oliver Herford; "Cornelli," by Spyri; "The Eugene Field Reader," by Harris.
